

Who Does It

Eight more outstanding agriculturalists are honored

Eight of Ontario's outstanding agriculturalists will be inducted into the Ontario Agricultural Hall of Fame on Sunday, June 7. The eight candidates, all deceased, have each in their own way made exceptional contributions to the development of agriculture in Ontario.

In announcing the names of those to be recognized, the President of the Ontario Agricultural Hall of Fame Association, Dr. R.J. McDonald, D.V.M., of Woodstock paid tribute to their roles in creating a better industry.

"Last year we opened our Gallery at the Ontario Agricultural Museum in Milton by inducting nine candidates. This year we will unveil the likenesses of eight additional people who deserve to have their memories perpetuated.

"Each of these candidates set high goals for himself, and in his or her own way, influenced the direction and strength of Ontario Agriculture."

The eight inductees for 1981 are:

Delmer Bennett (1925-1976) of Forrester Falls: A well-known Ottawa Valley dairy farmer, Delmer Bennett served his fellow farmers well in the organization and policy areas of the Ontario Farmers Union and later the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. His goal was a strong democratic farm organization.

James Bowman (1883-1944) of Guelph: Mr. Bowman was one of Ontario's pioneer breeders, exhibitors, importer and exporter of purebred livestock, specializing in Aberdeen-Angus cattle, Suffolk sheep and Clydesdale horses.

Fred W. Bray (1905-1978) of St. Catharines: Founder of the Bray Chick Hatchery, Fred Bray was a well known poultry breeder and one of the founders of the Canadian Poultry Council.

Johnston (Jack) Fraser (1904-1979) of Brampton: Jack Fraser was one of Ontario's best known Holstein breeders, exhibitors and judges. He served as president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, and the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless (1857-1910) of St. George: Motivated by the untimely death of her small child, Mrs. Hoodless embarked on a life-long crusade for improved food handling, the creation of Home Economics and Household Science courses in Normal Schools, the establishment of Macdonald Institute at Guelph. She was co-founder of the Women's Institute movement in Ontario.

David Jones (1836-1910) of Ringwood: Founder and first president of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association. Under his inspired leadership, the bee and honey industry assumed a new and respected position in agriculture.
