Steelers drop first in playoff action

Spectacular goalkeeping from Myrna Newman wasn't enough for Milton Frankel Steelers as the squad dropped a 4-0 decision to Burlington Black Hawks in junior girls playoff action Wednesday in Burlington.

Newman stopped 11 shots but Steelers couldn't amount much in the way of offence and were blanked at the other end.

"If we'd been able to get a goal early," explained Milton coach Carol Morrison, "it would have been a different game. The girls were skating well and Myrna was brilliant."

The loss is the only blemish for Steelers in three playoff games in the round-robin format. The squad won its other two games winning the second last week 3-0 over Oakville White Elms.

Kim Hamilton opened the scoring in the second period when she broke free and put a perfect deke on the goalie before tucking the puck in the corner.

Tricia Marcucci converted a rebound from a Jennifer Domenico shot for Steelers' second tally. The squad clinched the win when Newman, playing forward, scored from Marcucci.

Three Steamer teams vie for championships

Three Milton select teams will vie for grand championships at the revised Four-Town tournament Saturday in Orangeville.

The peewee, bantam and midget squads have shots at overall titles while the novices and atoms will go for the consolation titles in their respective groups.

Unlike previous years, when the four teams in each division played one game with a championship game between the two survivors, this year the top two teams in the league will battle for the championship with the bottom two going for the consolation title.

The select teams played in a 12-game schedule this year in a revamped league. Milton's five teams are sponsored by Milton Realty and are nicknamed Steamers for each division.

The timetable for Saturday is as follows:

- Novice: Play Georgetown for consolation 9 a.m.
- Atoms: Play Orangeville for consolation, 10 a.m.
- Peewee: Play Orangeville for grand championship, 4.30 p.m.
- Bantam: Play Georgetown for grand championship, 5.30 p.m.
- Midget: Play Georgetown for grand championship, 6.30 p.m.

SELLING YOUR HOME
by Murray Hood

SPRING MOVE

As springtime approaches, more people than usual consider the time right to consider a move, and each move involves the sale of one old house and purchase of a new home.

The most important matter to resolve is that of establishing the value of the old house and estimating the actual equity available to invest into a new home after all normal disposal costs have been taken care of.

Knowing the equity available and monthly carrying costs you can reasonably expect to service without undue strain on the family budget, a price range for the new home can be established. Having examined the types of homes available in the new price range, it would be wise to determine the features which are required and really needed in the new home, and also those which are desirable but not essential.

Assuming the old house is offered for sale at a competitive price and is strenuously promoted, it should sell for a realistic price and within a reasonably predictable time. If the sale contract offer to purchase has been correctly written without legal impracticalities or financial impossibilities, the seller will be in an excellent position to become a bona fide buyer.

Having previously established the type of new home required with the assistance of a reputable agent, the new home can generally be located and secured with a minimum of inconvenience and no surprises.

This entire process can be systematically achieved by use of Realty World's comparative market analysis and listing Action Files to establish competition and probable time frames.

If you want the best possible price for your home with least inconvenience, call Murray Hood to list your home, at office 878-6000 or home 878-8659.
