Connie Lee

A hop and a jig to Ireland

By LINDA KIRBY
Champion Reporter

There is a certain sparkle in Connie Lee's eyes when she talks about competing in the Irish World Dancing Championships.

It is not as if the 18-year-old Campbellville teen is unaccustomed to competition.

But this is the world championships and something quite special.

Connie will be one of 12 on a team competing in Galway, Ireland against the best from the United States, New Zealand, England, Australia, Scotland and of course, Ireland.

Connie attributes her love of traditional Irish dancing to her Irish father Frank Lee, who introduced her to some of the steps at the age of seven.

Despite the enormous self-discipline and hard work, (she practises twice a week as a member of the Woodgate School of Irish Dancing in Bramalea and competes every weekend) she admits she enjoys dancing very much.

"It is a lot of fun, and there is plenty of opportunity to travel," she said.

As a keen dancer and competitor, she has danced across this country and in many cities south of the border including: Cleveland, Detroit, Syracuse, and Rochester.

She has grown up with many of her fellow dancing students and she admits it is very much like a big family.

The decision to compete in the world dance championships was made one year ago, when Connie, along with 11 other top students, qualified to compete at the world level.

The girls will be judged on their dance steps, timing, originality of work and their costumes. Choreography and dance drama are major factors in the competition, she explained.

Although her parents will be unable to accompany her on this trip, Connie will not be without family. Her aunt, May Harkin, will be watching from the sidelines.

The only daughter of Frank and Pat Lee, Connie has two brothers, Sean and Michael. Both however, have no inclination towards Irish dancing.

A Grade 12 student at Assumption High School in Burlington, Connie plans to enroll in university to follow a teacher career upon completion of Grade 13.

She hopes to eventually teach elementary school children.

Her dancing future?

Connie admits she would enjoy a rest from competition, but maintains she will always keep dancing as a hobby.

The world championships begin today and will run until Monday.

Connie Lee of Campbellville is competing this week in the Irish Dancing World Championships in Galway, Ireland. The 18-year-old daughter of Frank and Pat Lee has been dancing since the age of seven years.
