John Milton I.O.D.E. Annual meeting

The John Milton Chapter of the IODE held a dessert party for the afternoon Bridge and Euchre groups in Graham Hall at St. Paul's United Church on Monday April 12th with over 70 ladies present. Delicious desserts were enjoyed followed by bridge and euchre games. The hall and tables were attractively decorated with the IODE colors red, white and blue and lovely floral arrangements added to the spring time atmosphere.

The past Regent, Mrs. R. Mackay, welcomed the ladies and thanked them for participating in the bridge and euchre games during the season which is our major source of revenue for the many IODE projects at the local, provincial and national levels.

The prize winners for the season with high scores in Bridge were, 1st prize, Mrs. Gwen Jeffares; 2nd prize, Mrs. Joan Lewis. The prize winners for high scores in euchre were first prize Mrs. Fanny Evans, second prize Mrs. Leona Fidler.

The IODE sponsored bridge and euchre games meet twice a month in over twenty different homes with four players in each home chatting over a game of cards and having a cup of tea together. It affords an opportunity for many new residents and those in Milton to get acquainted with each other and keep their friendship intact.

Anyone interested in playing bridge or euchre commencing next fall, please contact any IODE member or phone 878-4422.

Preserve history

A little of the history of Nassagaweya Township should be preserved for future generations, according to Town councillors.

To promote that idea they have approved a plan to allow the Campbellville Historical Society to preserve some of the pictures, records and the honor roll of the township that disappeared from the map with the formation of Regional government.

The details of the plan have been referred to Town staff to work out with the residents of the area.

Fundraising getting underway

Paul Crowley, general manager of Babcock Wilcox, is aiming at two targets in the Crawford Lake Indian Village and Conservation Centre fundraising campaign.

One target is the $700,000. his canvassing team will be attempting to raise during a six-week campaign beginning Sunday, May 2. The other is the target he will be aiming at with a bow and arrow during the ceremonial start of the fundraising drive at the lake.

The target-shooting is just one of the special events planned at Crawford Lake—on Guelph Line at Steeles Avenue—from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, May 2. All members of the public are invited to attend.

Crawford Lake is the site of the most accurately dated prehistoric Indian village in Canada. Construction of the first of at least six longhouses that made up the original village—which flourished from 1434 to 1459—will begin this summer. The village will be the second in Canada rebuilt on its original site.

A second phase of the project is to build a nature interpretive centre, to provide information about Indian culture and heritage, archaeology, biology, botany, the Niagara Escarpment, and the unique aspects of Crawford Lake.

Visitors at Crawford Lake will be able to ride to the nearby sheer cliffs of the Niagara Escarpment in a horse drawn wagon—or rise above the events on the ground in a hot-air balloon, to take pictures of the lake and surrounding woods.

Honorary campaign chairman, Allan Burton, the former president of Simpsons Ltd., will assist with the official campaign kickoff ceremonies at 2 p.m. Representatives of the provincial government will cut a ribbon to open the elevated boardwalk which circles the lake.

No water activities will be permitted in Crawford Lake—to preserve the unique structure of the lake bottom. Sediment on the bottom is arranged in distinct layers, which enables researchers to date accurately pollen, seeds, and other material found on the lake bottom.

Other events scheduled throughout the day on May 2 include a display of Iroquois pipes from the Royal Ontario Museum, explanation of archaeology techniques by officials of the Museum of Indian Archaeology in London, Ontario; Indian art and performances by members of the Woodland Indian Cultural and Education Centre in Brantford; bird banding demonstrations; and a conservation exhibition by the Halton Region Conservation Authority.

Visitors will be able to buy lunch of pancakes and sausages during the day—with proceeds going to the Crawford Lake campaign. Pins and posters will also be on sale.

Crawford Lake is located on a 180-acre site acquired by the Halton Region Conservation Authority more than 10 years ago. The funds are being raised by volunteers from all across Halton, working with the Halton Region Conservation Foundation.

Unique

Andrew and Holly are part of a unique 15-member family.

According to Derek Wood he is the only Giant Schnauzer breeder in the area and Holly's latest litter of 13 pups is one of a kind in Milton.

Holly's second litter nearly doubled the size of her first when she delivered seven pure bred Giant Schnauzers last spring at Derek's Redwood boarding kennel in rural Milton.

The large litter means an even larger job of finding homes for the pedigree pups which will be sold for $350—including ear clipping and shots. If Holly were a Canadian Champion, like her mate Andrew, the pups would bring somewhere between $600 and $1000.

It's hard to believe these two-day-old pups will develop into giants like their mother Holly. Her 13 Giant Schnauzer pups are unique in the area, says owner Derek Wood.
