

Nurse cleared of charge

A registered nurse with Milton District Hospital has been cleared of allegations of breach of confidentiality following an internal investigation.

Sandra Stoll, a nurse for the past nine years and a part-time health teacher with Sheridan College, was suspended from duty by hospital following a complaint she had disclosed information about a patient during a teaching session at Halton Centennial Manor.

That suspension order was later lifted but the hospital proceeded with an investigation.

"All three agencies—Milton District Hospital, Sheridan College and Halton Centennial Manor concur Mrs. Stoll has not breached any confidentiality," stated hospital administrator Brian Brady in a written release.

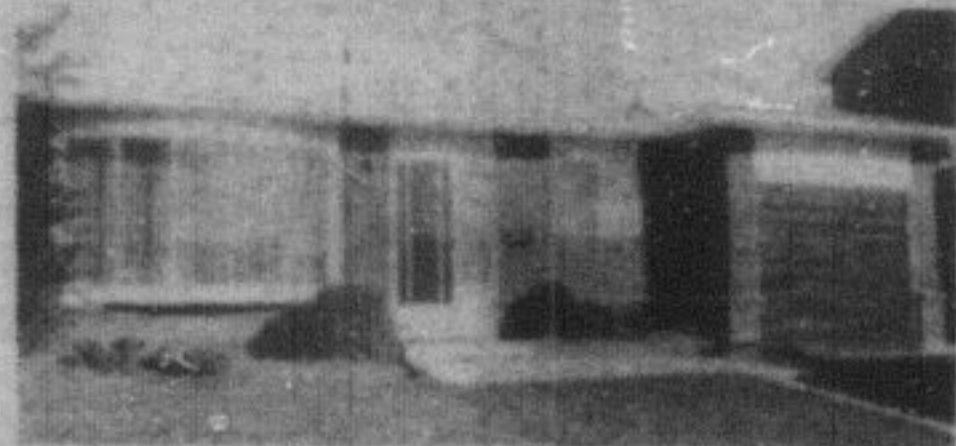

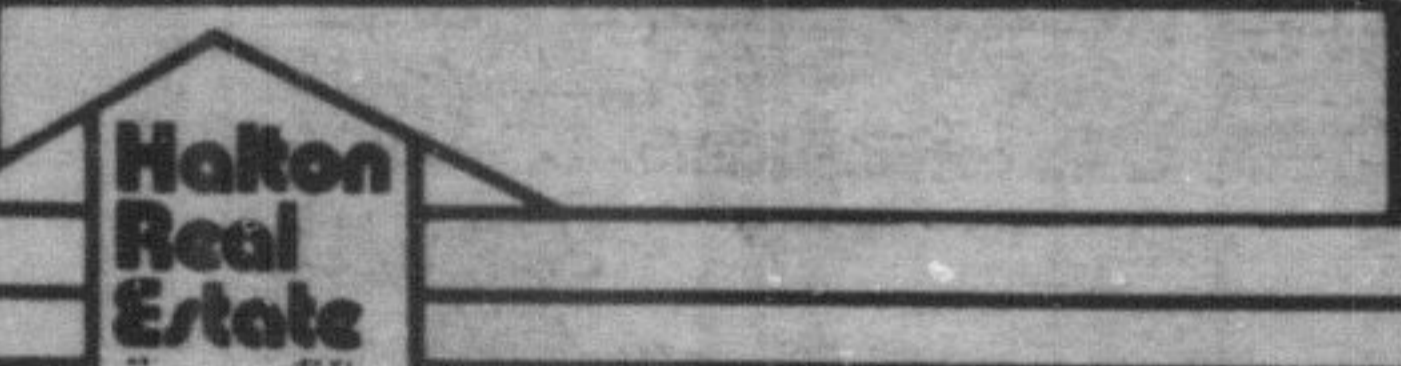

Mrs. Stoll said she does not plan to launch any legal action against the hospital, because of a specific request from Mr. Brady.

A resident of Milton for the past five years, Mrs. Stoll is presently working on a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and psychology. She resumes teaching with Sheridan College this week.

Dills-Hill wed

The Rev. E.T. Jack Birtch solemnized the marriage of Sharon Leslie Hill and James Mark Dills at St. Paul's United Church on Aug. 7, 1982. Sharon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill of Orangeville and Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dills of Milton. The couple are now residing in Guelph.

Rural water

Rural residents anxious to hook up to Halton's water mains are welcome to try a little gamble, courtesy of Halton Region.

Regional council recently voted to allow residents to connect to the mains, when water is accessible and available, before an official plan amendment making such connections legal is approved.

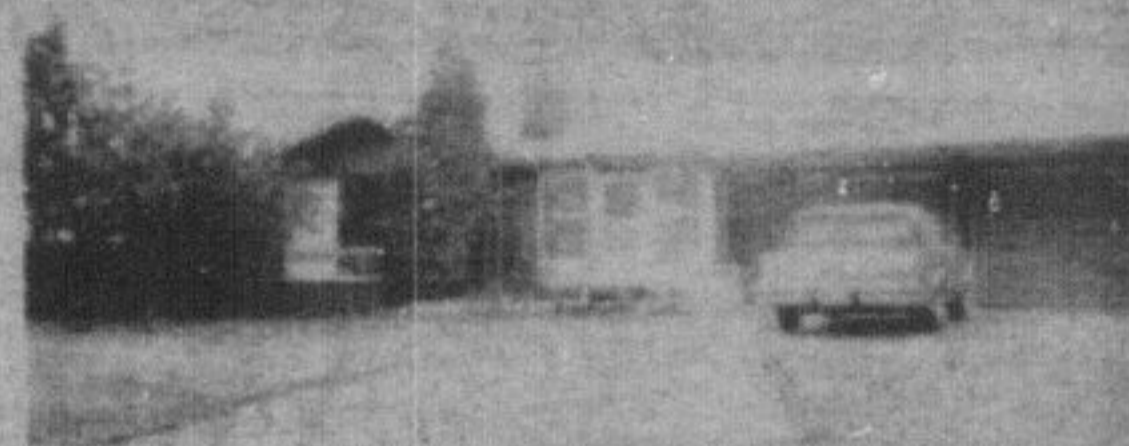

If, for some reason, Ontario Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Claude Bennett doesn't approve the amendment however, the connections would have to be taken out.
