Santa's Parade fund needs pumping up

By JANE MULLER
Staff Writer

Few people begin thinking about Christmas in October but a certain group would like local residents to get into the spirit of giving early.

The volunteers who comprise the Milton Santa Claus Parade Committee are seeking $5,000 in donations and another $4,475 through fund raising activities to finance the annual event.

To date just more than $1,000 has been received.

The committee has established three money making schemes including a 50/50 draw.

Tickets will be available from committee members or Milton Parks and Recreation Department beginning the first weekend in November, tickets will also be sold at Milton Mall Friday evenings and Saturdays.

The familiar "Santa banks" will be placed in more than 20 local businesses to allow for direct public donations.

On parade day, Sat. Nov. 26, special balloons will be sold with proceeds going to the publicly supported event.

Meanwhile, despite the minimal funds received so far the committee has forged ahead with plans and have secured a number of bands, special entries and majorette groups.

The community has already shown its interest in participating, indicated by four entries in the theme float category, two non-theme floats and three walking groups. This

Nominees are sought for award

"There can be no greater achievement in life than that of being of service to others".

For the past five years those words have been inscribed on the plaque presented to the recipient of the Howard C. Caine Community Service Award, and they sum up the spirit of unselfishness that the award publicly recognizes and honours each year.

The late Howard C. Caine was the founder of CHWO Radio, and his efforts on behalf of others through personal involvement in literally hundreds of causes and activities, prompted CHWO to create the Howard C. Caine Community Service Award in order that other outstanding citizens and groups might be thanked and honoured for their contributions.

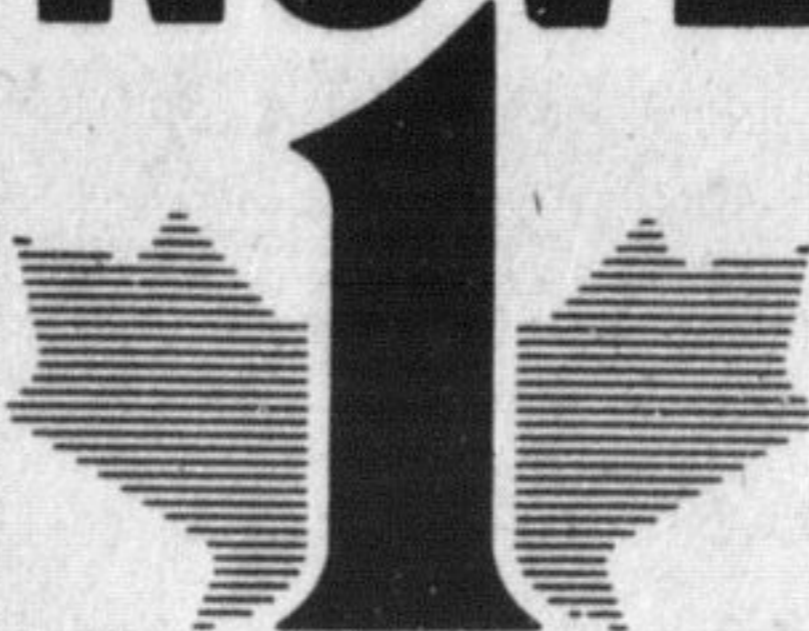

Again this year, CHWO is asking for nominations for this prestigious Award.

Any individual or any group in the Region of Halton, active in the service of the community and, by that service, enhancing the quality of life for others—may be nominated.

Mail submissions, which should include a brief biographical outline of the nominee(s), to: "Howard C. Caine Community Service Award, c/o CHWO Radio Limited, 490 Wycroft Road, Oakville, Ontario L6K 2H1". All nominations must be received by Nov. 11.

The winner(s) will be announced on Nov. 17.
