

You may pay $33

Minister will decide on dump fee

A plan to hit Halton residents with a special $33 per household charge for garbage disposal now rests with the provincial Minister of the Environment.

Regional council decided last week to go ahead with efforts to win approval for a planned four-stage expansion to the only remaining garbage dump, located in Burlington.

The expansion is needed to handle the region's garbage past the middle of next year when the dump is scheduled to close.

Halton's plans, however, hinge on a request to Andy Brandt, Minister of the Environment, to over rule his own bureaucrats and decree there will be no tribunal hearings before approval for the expansion is given.

If the hearings are required, councillors have been told, they will not be finished before the scheduled closing.

In that event, Halton's only available option is to ship 75 per cent of its trash to an incinerator in the United States.

That choice however, would leave the region facing a massive deficit in its non-tax supported waste disposal system and the only way to cover that would be to increase dumping fees to more than $40, or to levy the special $33 charge on all residents.

Not surprisingly, the expansion plan has been vehemently opposed by neighbours.

Sid Chumley, spokesman for the residents, told councillors if they approved the export option, his group would not oppose the first two phases of the expansion to handle the portion of the garbage which cannot be burned.

They would also not oppose required approvals for stations to collect garbage before it is transferred to Niagara Falls, New York.

"You should stand up and be counted as leaders and use your energies to solve this problem for the benefit of the region as a whole," he said.

Burlington councillor Walter Mulkewich says all Halton residents should pay a special $33 extra charge for garbage disposal rather than deny some of his constituents a chance to fight Halton's plans to expand the Burlington garbage dump.

Councillor Walter Mulkewich, the area's regional representative, said the problem to be solved is "just another act in the ongoing drama of Halton garbage and another opportunity for us to do the right thing."

Any effort to avoid approval hearings for the expansion, he said, would be a denial of the constitutional rights of the residents to the due process of law.

He also argued against the region's position that the approval hearings should not be held because Halton is facing an emergency.

"You have an alternative for your garbage and when you have an alternative you don't have an emergency," he said, adding the export of garbage is no different from selling oil, natural gas or electricity. Other councillors, however, argued the export plan would be a financial penalty on the rest of the region to provide a small benefit for the Burlington residents.

Arguments against the plan have included the possibility of the international border being closed to Canadian garbage, the problems of dealing with a labor shut down at the American incinerator and the aggravation of American problems with garbage.

"We have to live with the results of the problem we create," said Councillor Steve Toth (Burlington). "We have to handle our own garbage here."

Councillor Joan Little (Burlington) argued if the region is to spend $14 million over three years to finance the export option, there are other, more pressing, priorities for the money.

Councillors finally agreed to ask the minister to cancel the requirement for approval hearings and to reply to the request by Dec. 5 for firm action on the region's garbage problem can be taken at the Dec. 7 council meeting.

They also deferred approval of the export option until after the minister responds, fearing if the second choice is approved now "we'd be giving the minister the choice of doing nothing that locks us in to the export option," commented Oakville Mayor Harry Barrett.

Milton Old Stars Hockey Club presented $1,000 to the Milton District Hospital Expansion Fund, representing the proceeds from their recent 16-team Old Stars tournament. The team made the donation in memory of former club president Stan Edgar, who died Oct. 12. Sam Nadalin, chairman of the service clubs and organizations committee of the hospital fund-raising campaign, accepted the cheque and thanked the team for their support.

Old Stars help

Hospital update

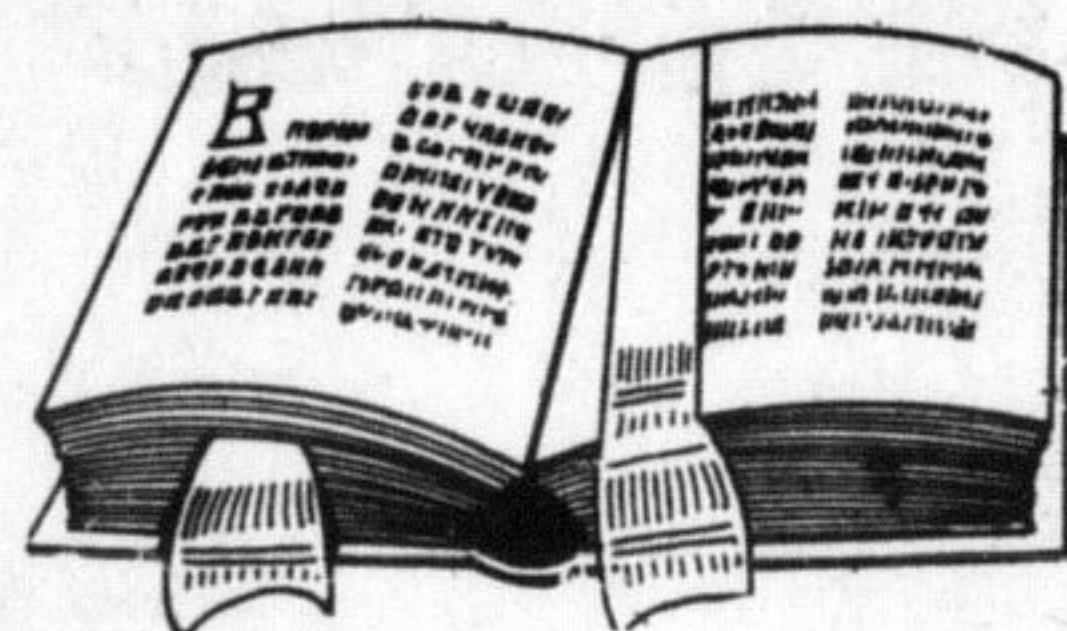

When the Milton Old Stars Hockey Club was formed a few years ago, club members "adopted" Milton District Hospital as their favorite charity and agreed to channel all excess funds into the building. This year the Old Stars took another large step toward their goal of giving $10,000 to the hospital and its expansion campaign.

After their first year of operation the Old Stars spent $3,000 on video equipment for the hospital. The following year the club purchased training film tape units for the video player.

This year they sponsored a highly successful 16-team tournament for Old Stars teams and the $1,000 proceeds from the event went to the hospital expansion fund last week. Sam Nadalin accepted the cheque on behalf of the hospital fund-raising committee and praised the team for their continuing support of the project.

The $1,000 was donated in memory of Stan Edgar, a longtime Old Star supporter who was serving as club president when he died in October. Stan was also a hospital supporter and had served on the hospital's board of directors for several years.

In 1984 the Old Stars are hoping to raise another $4,000 for the hospital campaign, to complete their pledge of $10,000. Their main fund-raising function will be a game against the World Champion Old Stars from Toronto, to be held in town Saturday, Jan. 14. This is the team's fourth major event to raise money for the hospital and it is expected the results will put them over the $10,000 mark.
