Step lively

The Farm Museum held its Fiddle Days last weekend, part of a new commitment to a wider range of public entertainment at the privately run facility. Lee Paul (left) entertained crowds prior to the fiddle and step dance demonstrations first as Robin Hood (above) and later as Astro Nut (below). Step dancers got lively (center) and Melissa Diebold (right) fiddled around with the crowd.

What's going on at Crawford Lake ?

Three sisters of native agriculture will be featured this summer at Crawford Lake Conservation Area.

Corn, beans and squash were considered special gifts from the creator and were traditionally planted together to provide strength and support for each other.

Visitors are invited to go back in time to a reconstructed Iroquoian village and explore longhouses, craftmaking and native games. The village is open daily through September 1 from 11 a.m. through 4 p.m. with the site opening an hour earlier.

Swimming, boating and fishing are not permitted due to the rare geological significance of the lake, however hikers are welcome. Crawford Lake is located five kilometers south of Highway 401 on Guelph Line. For more information call the Halton Region Conservation Authority at (905) 336-1158.
