Don't let your next road side emergency give you a breakdown. Assemble your own traveling emergency road kit to prepare for most problems.

Whether you are a new car owner or haven't yet thought about emergency preparation, carrying these essentials can make the difference between inconvenience and disaster. They also make thoughtful gifts for someone you know with a new car.

Be sure your jack and spare tire are in the car at all times.

To make yourself visible to oncoming motorists, keep handy in your own vehicle a white cloth for tying on your antenna and flares or reflectors for breakdowns at night. Also, carry a first-aid kit for emergencies. Bottled water and food are good to have for long waits, but tuck them away so you won't be tempted to dip into them on a regular road trip.

To get better gas mileage from your vehicle follow these tips:

Lighten Up. Remove unnecessary items from the vehicle. Less weight means better mileage.

Drive Sensibly. Don't speed; avoid sudden accelerations and hard braking. Use cruise control on highways. Anticipate traffic patterns ahead and adjust your speed gradually. In addition to better gas mileage, your engine and brakes should last longer.

Maintain the engine. Follow the service schedules listed in the owner's manual. A well maintained engine burns less fuel than a neglected one. Replace fluids and filters as recommended; have engine performance problems (rough idling, poor acceleration, etc.) corrected at a repair facility.

Check tire pressure. Under-inflated or poorly aligned tires waste fuel, since the engine must work harder to move the vehicle. Consult the owner's manual or tire sidewalls for recommended pressure. An alignment may be warranted if the tread is wearing unevenly or if the vehicle "pulls" while being driven on a flat road.

Consolidate daily errands and short trips. Some trips may be unnecessary. Also, travel when traffic is light to avoid stop-and-go conditions.

By changing your driving habits and practicing routine car care, you will get better gasoline mileage, help the environment, and extend the life of your vehicle.
