

Future firefighter?

Make the Right Call

Get the facts about carbon monoxide

Your local heating service?

911 or your local emergency service?

We'd like to clear the air about carbon monoxide. That's why we've created the 'Make the Right Call' program. Our informative brochure and fridge magnet explains what to do if you suspect there's carbon monoxide in your home or business.

It also discusses the use of detectors and helpful hints on how to lessen the chances of a carbon monoxide problem. Properly installed and maintained natural gas equipment seldom causes carbon monoxide problems. 'Make the Right Call' clearly outlines who to call if you have concerns. So breathe easy.

Call or visit your local Union Gas office for your free information kit on carbon monoxide.

Coping with the kids

Child care givers have a brand new avenue to access training opportunities at a nominal cost.

The recently established Halton Child Care Registry will offer workshops throughout the region this fall on managing misbehavior, infant/child safety and "caring for the caregiver."

Workshops will be held weekdays at local family resource centres, with child care available for infants and children up to five years old.

For more information on the Halton Child Care Registry, call Nicky Pearson at 875-0235 or Jill Snidal at 849-6366.
