Let Her Know She's Divine With the Gift of Fine Jewelry

(MPS) — For centuries, many cultures have believed in divine figures that intervene in affairs of the heart. In fact, there still may be people today who liken falling in love to feeling the effect of Cupid's good aim.

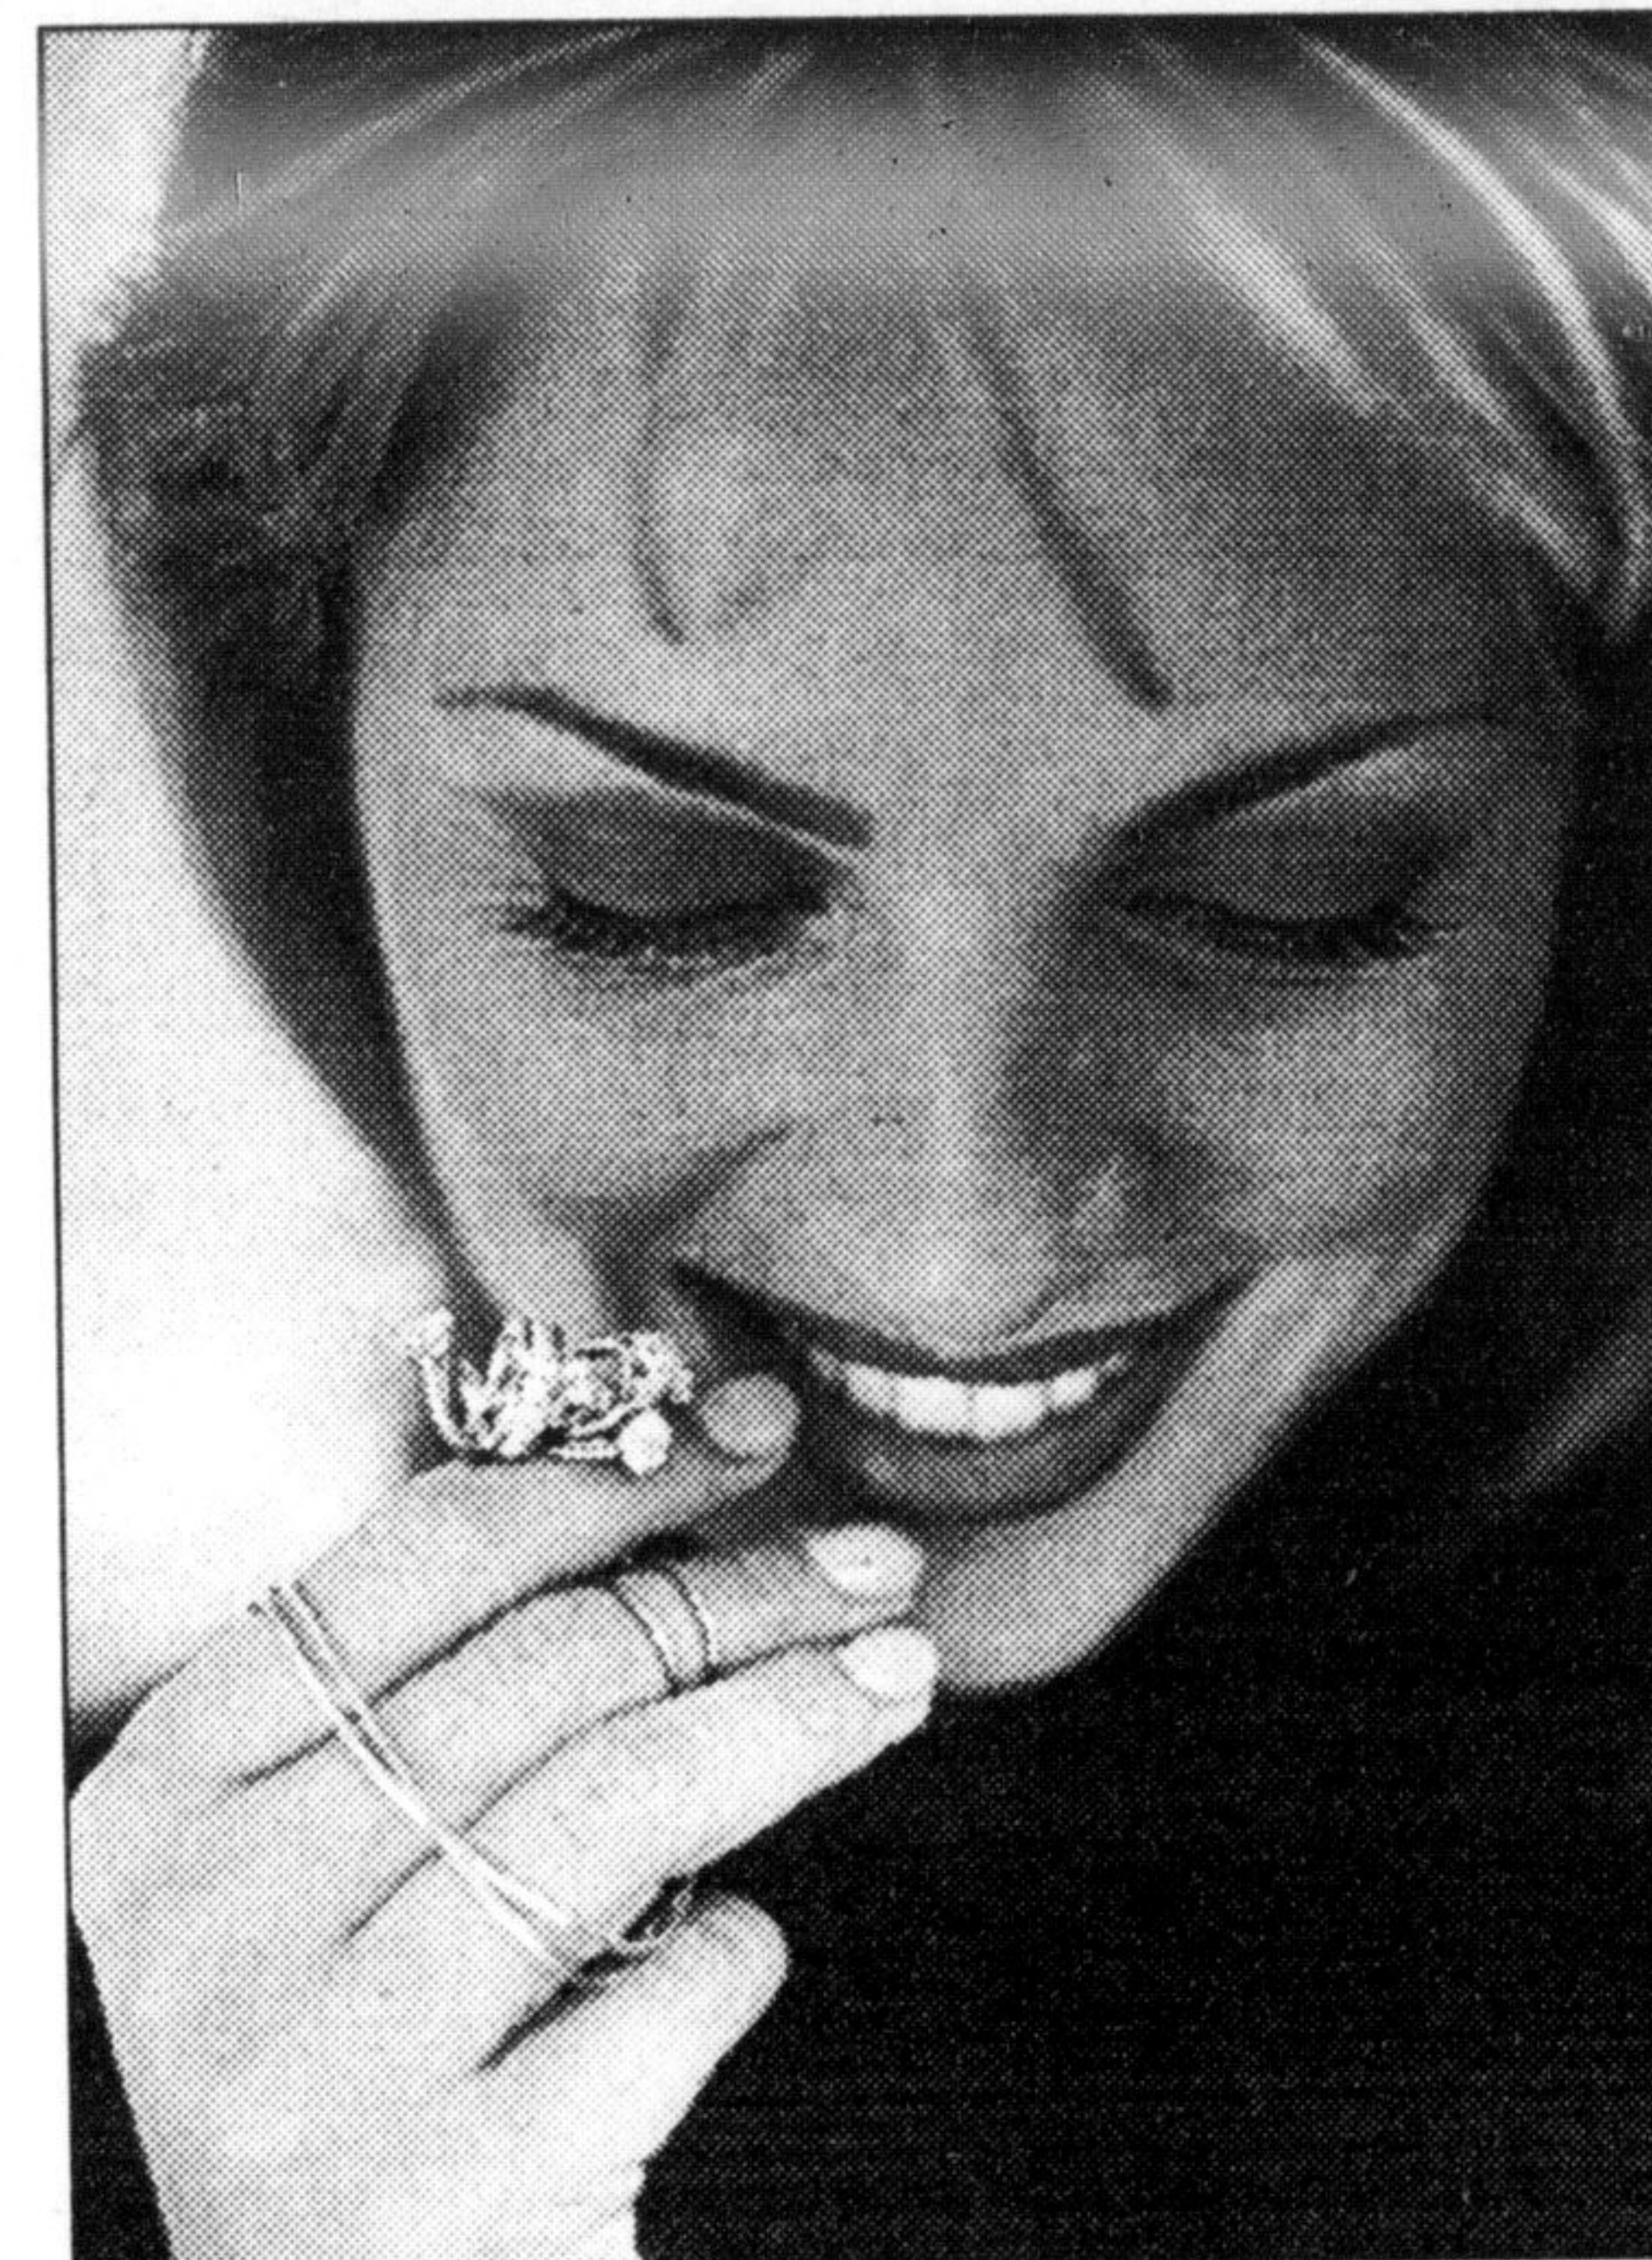

Cherubs and angels are helpers in love and healers of the heart. That is why jewelry designers are celebrating these celestial creatures in pins, necklaces, and rings of gold, sterling silver and platinum.

Isaac Mizrahi chose angels as the theme for his first-ever collection of jewelry, called Angel Rings, miniature diamond engagement rings and diamond wedding bands, made by OE Design, that hang like charms from a platinum chain.

The addition of a 14K gold angel to your sweetheart's charm bracelet can be a gift that is truly heaven-sent. A cherub pendant on a sterling silver chain surely will let that special someone know that she's "divine."

For a romantic holiday like Valentine's Day, fine jewelry is a fine choice, according to Jewelers of America, the national organization dedicated to providing consumers with information about fine jewelry.

Stop by your local jewelry store, and you'll see that many jewelry designers are exploring whimsical themes. You'll find a variety of celestial figures, like stars, suns, moons — and cherubs.
