Halton gets $10 million in funding, but Krantz isn't getting too excited

Halton Region will receive $10.2 million in special funding from the province to offset costs of taking over GO Transit.

Control of the commuter service is being handed to municipalities as a result of a reorientation of government responsibilities.

The money will be used to set up a reserve fund and will be made available when the Greater Toronto Services Board (GTSB) legislation is passed. The GTSB is to be an umbrella organization handling municipal service delivery in the Toronto area, including Halton.

Milton Mayor Gord Krantz says the $10 million grant may sound like a lot of money, but given the cost of running the service each year it really is not much.

Mr. Krantz said many questions still need to be answered before it is clear just how much Halton will be required to contribute to GO Transit operations.

According to terms of its draft legislation contributions for GO will be determined by the GTSB, Mr. Krantz said.

"The provincial contribution is better than nothing," acknowledged Mr. Krantz. However, "We may have to raise the costs of GO from property taxes," he cautioned.

Other municipalities with GO Transit services will also receive a part of more than $106 million provided by the province. Toronto will get $53.1 million, Peel Region $16.6 million, York Region $11.9 million, Durham Region $11.3 million and Hamilton-Wentworth $3.3 million.

Minister of Transportation Tony Clement said the money is a portion of the

COMMUNITY CARE ACCESS CENTRE (CCAC) AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR HOMEMAKING & NURSING SERVICES

The Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) of Halton provides community-based multi-disciplinary health/support services and facilitates placement into long-term care facilities for the residents of Halton. The CCAC operates under provincial legislation.

In May, 1996, the Ministry of Health issued a document, Provincial Requirements for the Request for Proposal Process (RFP). This document outlined the provincial requirements that have been developed to assist local CCACs to obtain the highest quality of client services, supplies and equipment at the best price. CCACs are required to use the RFP process for the purchase of the following client services: nursing, therapy services and personal support/homemaking.

The CCAC of Halton has recently completed the RFP process. The Board has approved the awarding of a contract for the provision of 30% of homemaking services to Victorian Order of Nurses, Halton Branch and a contract for the provision of 30% of nursing services to Olsten Health Services.

CCAC Case Managers will be visiting all clients affected by this change in service provider to make this a smooth transition. Each client will continue to receive the quality care required to meet their ongoing needs.

Bridal show is for good cause

Soon-to-be brides will be the centre of attention Sunday, Mar. 29 at the Milton Spring Bridal Show '98.

The show at the Milton Leisure Centre will run from noon to 4 p.m. and feature a fashion show at 2 p.m.

Gowns, wedding attire and casual clothes will be shown by Promises & Lace Bridal and Dress Boutique of Burlington as well as Bill Mathers Men's Wear, Shapings and Jo'Leens.

Several other businesses will exhibit wedding-related goods and services.

An added attraction will be a performance by Debi Sander Walker of Rainbow Music in Mississauga.

"Debi is not only a big band leader, but has had some wonderful experience playing the alternate for the lead role of Patsy Cline in 'Patsy' and has performed at Nathan Phillips Square, Skydome, Royal York Hotel and many other venues," said show organizer Jackie Patrick of Patrick Event Planning in Milton.

Show tickets cost $5 in advance and $6 at the door and are available at participating businesses.

Proceeds from ticket sales will go to Milton District Hospital, Ms Patrick said.

Renovations worth the effort: Bergsma

wooden posts about half the diameter of a telephone pole. The bottoms of these posts were rotting, causing the beams to sag as much as two or three inches from level.

Renovations included sinking concrete footings into the basement floor, and then building simple concrete posts to support the huge square wooden floor beams above. These posts had to be duplicated on the main floor and subsequent floors and needed to be in perfect alignment. There are four apartments on two upper stories in the century building.

In the store the posts are used for display purposes and are decorated with wallpaper samples, paint, mouldings and fabrics.

"It wasn't cheap to fix the supports but we knew what we were getting into when we bought the building," he said. "It was worth doing to save the building."

Mr. Bergsma said the upper floors still need some work but the project is slated for the future.

In the retail area, once the floor was properly supported, back offices were torn out, a new back entrance constructed, a new ceiling put in and a customer washroom was installed.
