

Unpleasant surprise Friday morning

Mr. Smith suggested that Milton may experience more of these 'build-ups' in the coming months, but that public works officials are taking extensive measures to minimize the chance of any reoccurrence.

Several hydrants in Town were being run to flush the system Friday morning and the discoloration was already starting to disappear within three hours.

The scary thing about this latest tainting, Ms Oest said, wasn't so much the health risk but the changing information she received from the Region.

"How can they say it's a main break in one breath and then a sediment build-up in the next? It's very disturbing," she said.

Pat Duignan, a longtime opponent to chlorination, is starting to change her tune in light of recent tainting.

Said the Main Street resident and community activist, "It's well known that I was against chlorination, but in retrospect it might not be a bad thing. This is happening just a little too often.

"There needs to be an intense examination done, not so much on our water but on our distribution system."

Still adamantly opposed is Pat Kelly of the Milton Ratepayers Association.

He said the Region's claim that chlorine kills all bacteria from contamination is "nonsense."

"You see these public works officials bring jugs of chlorine with them whenever there's a break, so you've got to wonder if there's been cases of super chlorination in people's showers," Mr. Kelly suggested. "I have heard of cases of skin irritation."

Correction

A March 13 story about a police chase contained incorrect information after two separate incidents were confused.

The story said a 34-year-old Highway 25 man faced numerous charges in connection with a high-speed chase on Appleby Line March 10.

In actual fact, the man was charged with driving with over the legal limit of alcohol in his blood, obstructing police and driving while disqualified after he was stopped at Main and Bell streets at 8:30 p.m. March 7.

Another man, 37, of Highway 25 was charged with engaging in a pursuit, dangerous operation of a motor vehicle and driving while disqualified in connection with the March 10 chase. The two men are brothers. We apologize for the error.

Trustee has three options

"At this point, he's only been charged. People are concerned for his welfare."

Mr. Sweeney, who learned about the fraud charge at noon yesterday and hadn't heard from Mr. Deoni at mid-afternoon, said the trustee has three options.

Nothing in the Education Act calls for his resignation unless he is convicted so he can either resign on his own, apply for a leave of absence or carry on as usual.

"Mr. Deoni is a proud man. I'm sure he'll make the right decision about his trusteeship," Mr. Sweeney said.

Former fellow school trustee Mary Lou Loughlin, who started on the board with Mr. Deoni nine years ago, said she's always known the husband, father and church-goer to be of high principle, and hasn't changed her opinion in light of the charge.

"I've always thought of Joe as a fabulous trustee — an invaluable person," she said. "I'm his good friend and I will always be his good friend."
