Woman returns to her birthplace for marriage

By STEVE LeBLANC

The Champion

Paris may be known as a place for lovers, but the city of light rates a distant second on Theresa Shakespeare's romantic rating.

Topping her list now is little old Milton, where she entered the world nearly 40 years ago but was uprooted suddenly at the tender age of two.

"I'm still not sure why my parents decided to move," said Ms Shakespeare, a longtime resident of Bristol, England. "Having no real memories of Milton or Canada, it's always been my dream to return."

Having become engaged last year while visiting Paris, this spring presented the perfect opportunity to revisit her birthplace and give birth to a new phase of her life.

She and hubby Ian Shipp exchanged wedding vows at the local courthouse and were blessed at Grace Anglican Church — where Ms Shakespeare was bap-

Theresa Shakespeare returned to her birthplace of Milton last week, where she wed her longtime sweetheart.
