

Councillors swap barbs

• from SKIRMISH on page 1
with the local chapter."

A conflict of interest must be declared if a councillor or any member of his or her family can directly or indirectly profit from the resolution, said Mr. Malboeuf.

That is not happening in this case, he said.

Conflict of interest guidelines have changed and councillors should be aware of them, responded Mr. Challinor.

"It goes now beyond pecuniary interest. It gets into ethics as well," he said. "From my reading of how it has changed, we have to be even more careful."

Councillor Brian Penman hoped to resolve the issue by suggesting that council vote to re-open Mr. Melanson's motion.

In order to get it back on the table, the motion to re-open the issue had to receive support from two thirds of the council.

It failed on a 5-4 vote instead.

Ever wonder who's on the other end of the phone in this newspaper advertisement?

It's an organization called Birthright and it has been helping Milton women with crisis pregnancies for 15 years.

"We're kind of outcasts. No one understands what we are," said Jan Platts, regional consultant for Birthright's southwestern Ontario division.

It's kind of a catch-22. Pro-choice supporters see
