Festival, in which he won the Jean Chalmers Award for Most Promising Actor.

The honour led to his first television role in the former CBC series Street Legal.

Additional television credits include a starring role in The Untouchables, recurring roles on Melrose Place and Knots Landing, and a guest spot on Seinfeld.

He also starred in Big Dreams and Broken Hearts: The Dottie West Story and the NBC mini-series Degree of Guilt.

He recently completed the filming of Richard Benjamin's The Shrink Is In, in which he stars opposite Courteney Cox and David Arquette. The independent film should be in the theatres in March.

Mr. Elliott was most recently seen in the independent film Clockwatchers alongside Parker Posey, Toni Collette and Lisa Kudrow. Other independent film credits include Night Friends and The Climbs. He also starred in the remake of the 1947 A Holiday Affair, originally starring Robert Mitchell and Janet Leigh.

Mr. Elliott said his family still resides in Milton and he comes to town from time to time to visit them.

The actor currently resides in Los Angeles with his actress wife and their daughter.

Meanwhile, the show will go on. The Celebration of the Arts — the first of its kind in Milton — is coming together as a major showcase of the town's wealth of artistic and musical talent, Ms Jeffrey said.

Presented by Arts Milton and the Rotary Club of Milton, the two-day event will feature fine arts and craft shows and performances by musicians, singers, dancers, minstrels, storytellers and theatre groups.

"We have lots of momentum," said Ms Jeffrey, also president of Arts Milton.

The show will open at the Farmers' Market and continue at various venues surrounding the core, including Town Hall and Hugh Foster Hall.
