Local artists getting the exposure they deserve

Hats off to the many local organizations and volunteers for their efforts in bringing the work of local artists to the forefront.

Since its inception three years ago, the Fine Arts Society of Milton (FASM) has made a major contribution to the cause of promoting creative expression and culture, which have an important place in society.

FASM president Marion Detlor points out in an article elsewhere in this newspaper that the arts are blooming all over Milton. Finally, artists are getting more of the exposure they deserve.

We saw the works and abilities of many on the weekend with Arts Milton's Celebration of the Arts festival and we'll see more soon with FASM's Studio Tour (October 23 and 24).

Tomorrow, an art show and sale will be held as a fundraiser for Milton Bible Church.

This newspaper will also help reflect the town's rich artistic talent through its revamped arts and entertainment section appearing in today's newspaper and every subsequent second Friday.

Now all we need is an arts centre.

Justice has been delayed yet again

Dear Editor:

Prorogation of parliament's main effect is not cabinet avoiding opposition questioning for three extra weeks.

It is that all legislation not signed into law and all hearings of committees not concluded are scrapped and must start again from square one.

Articles stating the accomplishments of this parliament's first session are appearing. Will those bills cancelled be published as well?

In particular, did the bill to have multiple murderers serve time for each crime — rather than the present one cover all concurrent sentences — become law?

If not, justice has been delayed once again.

Thanks for the flowers

Dear Editor:

On Saturday morning I was at the Farmers' Market and some kind gentleman paid for the flowers I was buying.

I just want to say thank you very much. You made an ordinary Saturday morning into something special for me.

Let's save Bronte Creek park, urges reader

Dear Editor:

(The following letter was sent to Halton MPP Ted Chudleigh and a copy was filed with The Champion.)

Recent reports state that Bronte Creek Provincial Park is on the short list of potential sites for a golf course. It appears that since Glen Abbey has been sold, the Royal Canadian Golf Association needs another facility in this area.

It's to be hoped that local residents and politicians will realize what a gift Bronte Creek park has been to all residents of Halton. Naturalists appreciate the fact that land at this historic site supports many wildlife and plant species that are rapidly disappearing from the earth.

Parents no doubt are aware of the educational and recreational experiences their children have received as a result of the park's location and well-planned programs.

Surely local and provincial politicians will reconsider including Bronte Creek Provincial Park on the list of locations for yet another golf course.

Man seeks pen pals

Dear Editor:

I'm seeking pen pals. I would be grateful if you could publish my name and particulars in your widely-read newspaper, The Canadian Champion, so I could make friends from your country Canada.

My name is Michael Donkor. I am a Ghanaian male aged 25 years. My hobbies are making new friends, writing letters, soccer and music.
