

'Big Pipe' construction officially underway

Construction being conducted in stages starting at Hwy. 407

Milton is one step closer to lake-based water service — and to growth.

Construction on the Region's 'Big Pipe' project, which will pump water from Lake Ontario to the town, officially kicked off early last week.

The construction will take place in stages beginning at the Hwy. 407 right-of-way between Dundas Street and Burnhamthorpe Road.

Both water and wastewater pipelines will be constructed simultaneously and run roughly along the west side of Regional Road 25, then travel along the south side of Derry Road.

The pipes will end about 600 metres north of Thompson Road.

The pipes are needed to service phase one growth under the Halton Urban Structure Plan.

This would bring water to 6,200 new homes and at least 500 acres of employment land in town.

By 2016, Milton is expected to almost triple in size, weighing in with a population of about 85,000.

Conservation Halton is currently in discussions with the Region to ensure the pipes have a minimal impact on the natural habitat when they cross creeks.

Traffic management is also part of the plan.

And residents and business owners will be warned when construction approaches their property.

Residents can also call 693-1166 for a current, 24-hour recorded message on the construction schedule.

They can also log onto the project's web site at www.thebigpipe.ca.

The pipe project is expected to wrap up this fall.

It's being handled as a design-build project by the D'Orazio-Walter joint venture.
