Haydar's Wildcats beat in semifinals

Darren Haydar's New Hampshire Wildcats had their conference championship run halted by an ill-timed scoring lapse and a little luck of the Irish Friday.

Against local favourite and shamrock-totting Boston College, UNH squandered an initial lead and eventual fell 2-1 in their Hockey East semifinal showdown at the Fleet Center.

Haydar had a couple of key scoring chances — his first deemed to have been kicked in while the second was turned aside with a fantastic pad save by opposing cager Scott Clemmensen inside the final minute of play.

Despite the loss, UNH could still make a return trip to the national finals.

As one of the top seeds nationally all year long, they've now secured an at-large bid to the regional playdowns in Minnesota.

They'll face Niagara Friday, with the winner squaring off against North Dakota the following day for a berth to the NCAA's Frozen Four.

Milton's sharp shooting right winger has been named a second team all-star in Hockey East and was recently picked the fan favourite by spectators at New Hampshire.

Meanwhile, fellow Merchant graduate Kevin O'Flaherty ended his rookie season in the NCAA Thursday — as his Clarkson Golden Knights were doubled by Cornell 4-2 in ECAC preliminary action.

They outshot their division rivals 40-26 but gave up four unanswered goals — three within a shaky second period — en route to defeat.

Twin terrors

Ball State University's boys baseball team opened the home half of regular season play with a double-header sweep of Valparaiso Saturday.

And Milton's Ridley brothers — as usual — put their stamp on the victories.

The twins combined for four hits and three runs in the Cardinals' 7-0 game one whitewash of Valparaiso.

Shortstop Shayne, still in the leadoff position, punched out a couple of doubles and stole three bases.

He also brought in runs two and six.

Jeremy — who continues to guard second base and hit third in the lineup — cashed in his brother on a sacrifice fly, also hit a double and scored the team's final run.

The Miltonians' plate pop was even more valuable later in the day, when they helped the Cardinals prevail 4-1.

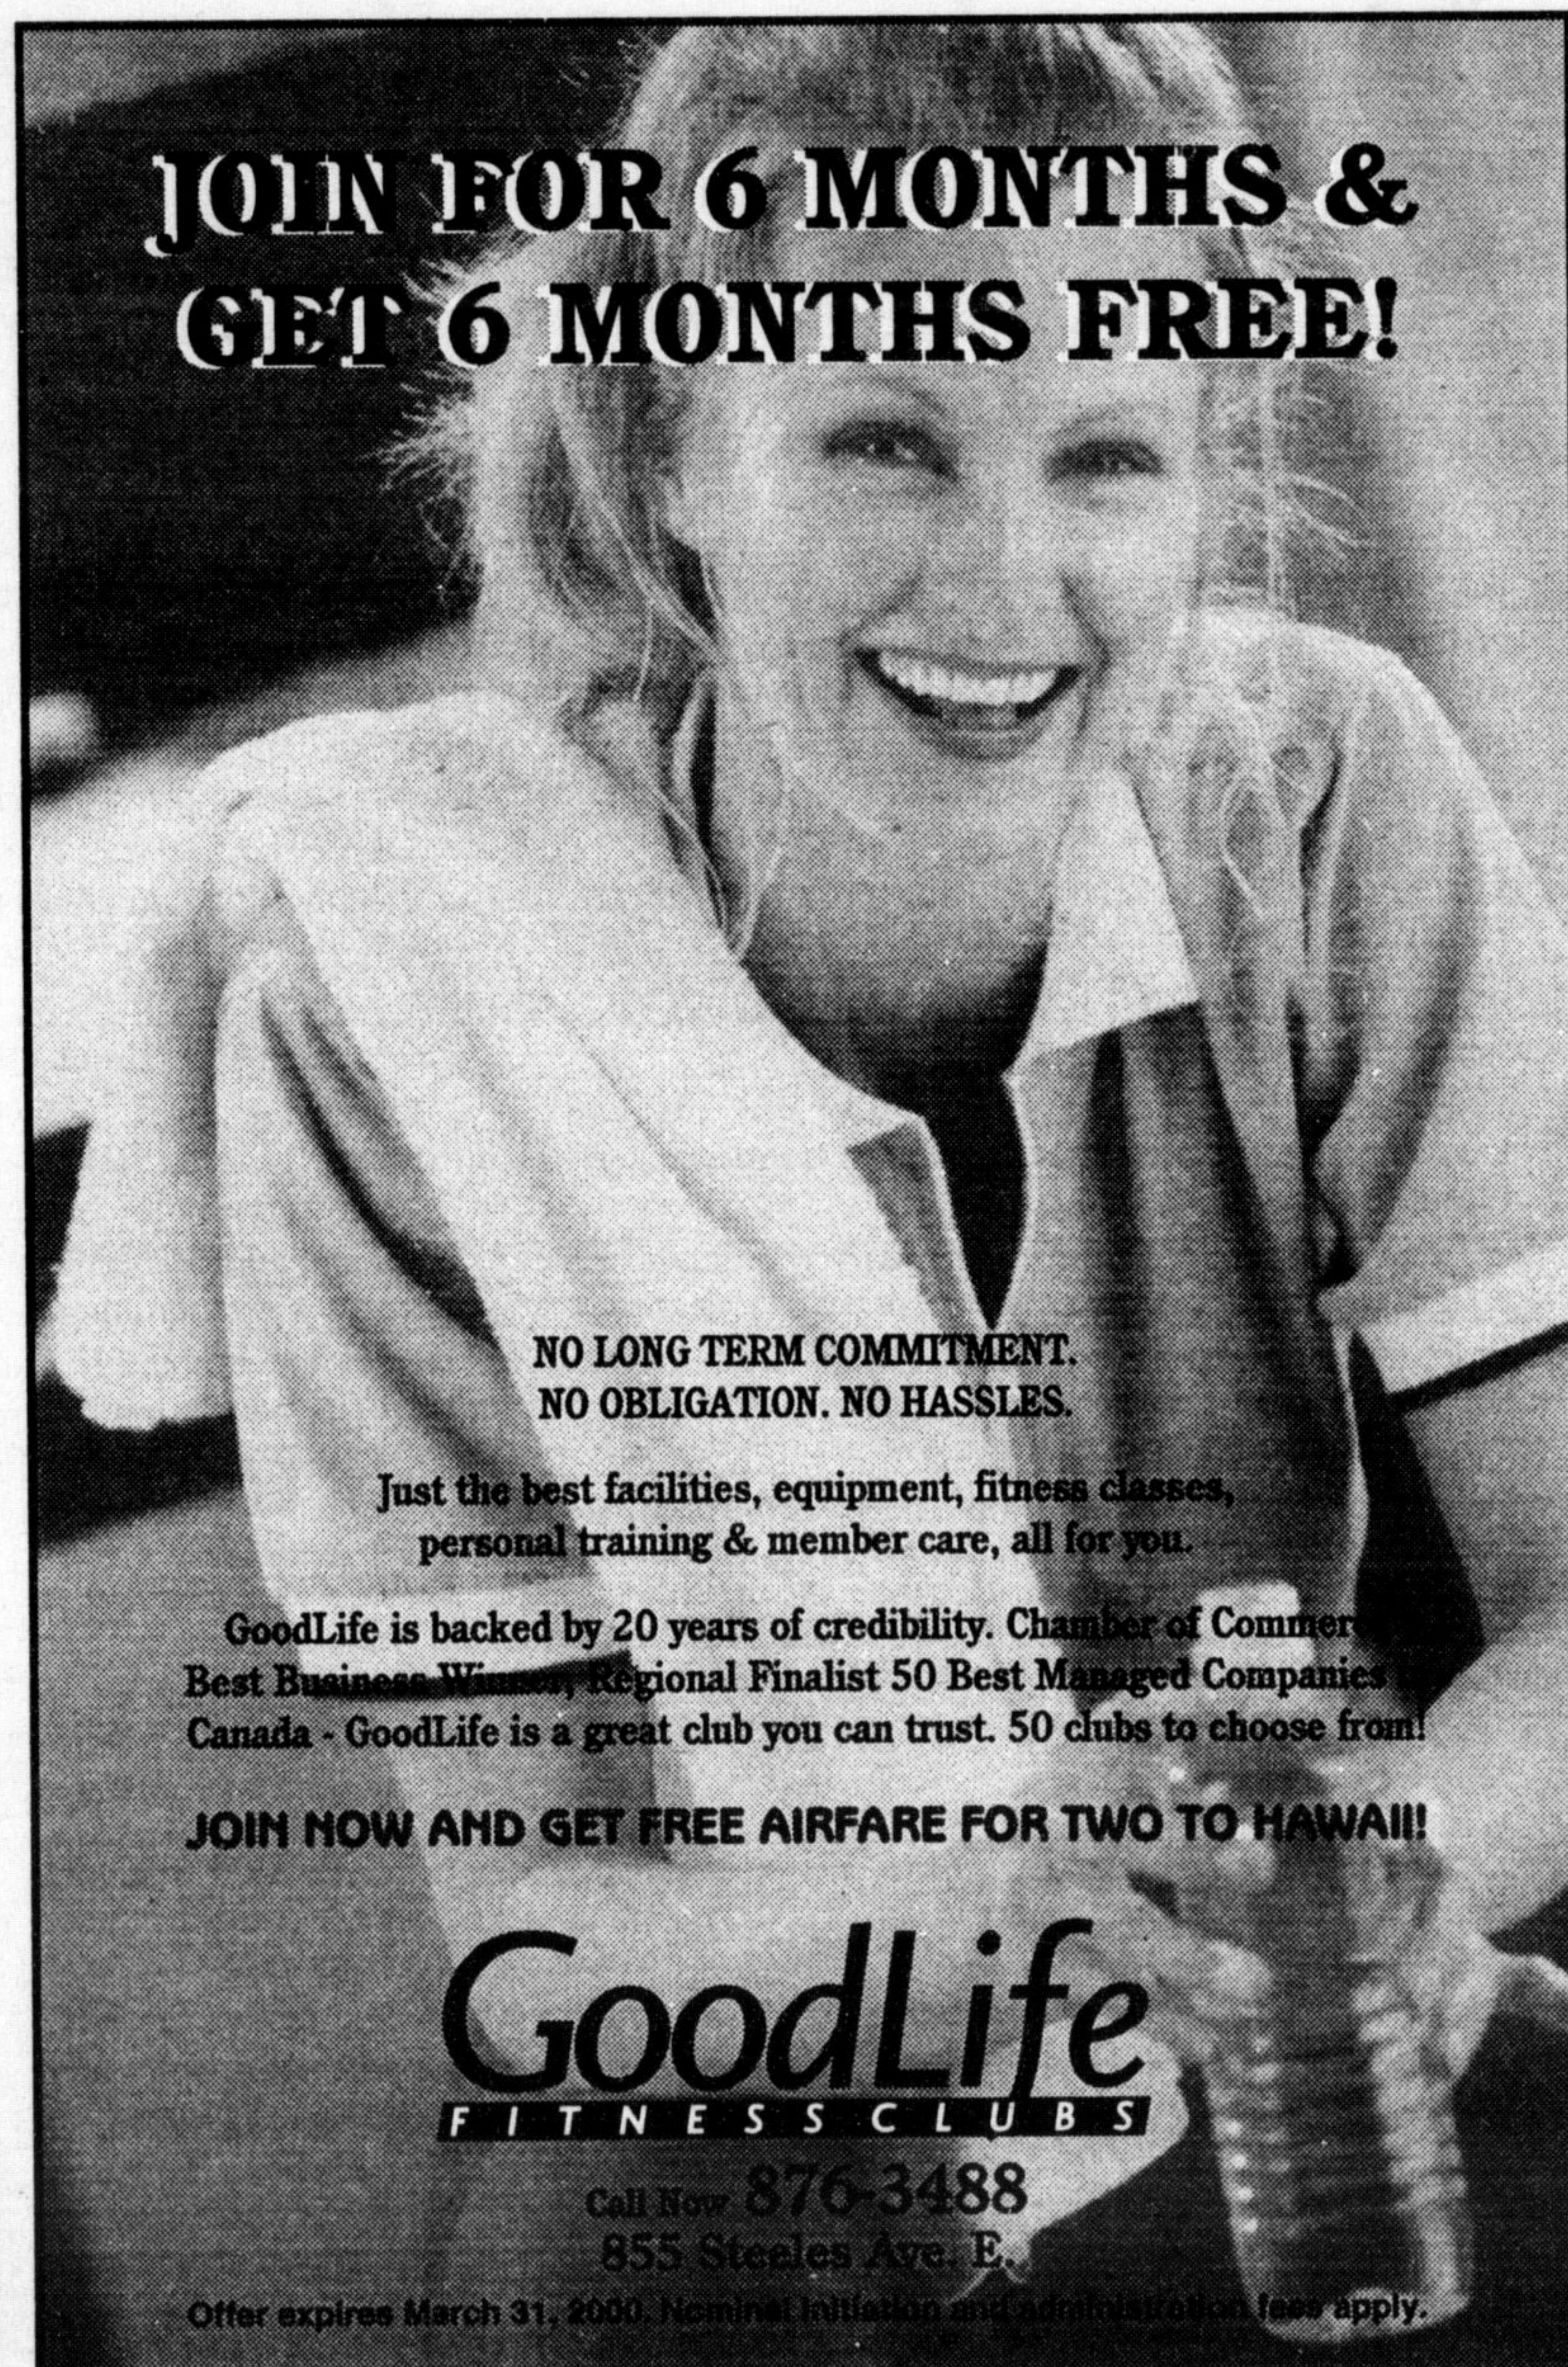

Shayne lashed out a double and later scored run number two in the third inning.

Then Jeremy delivered another sacrifice fly to cash in the eventual game-winning run in the fifth frame.

The bashing brothers — who remain top prospects for the major leagues — will try to guide Ball State to a fifth consecutive winning season, something that hasn't been achieved since the mid '30s.

In 1999, BSU won the regular season conference championship and finished with an overall record of 40-16.
