

Ridley goes on-line

Ever wanted to go one-on-one with a major league baseball prospect? Well now you can.

Milton's Jeremy Ridley — recently drafted by the Toronto Blue Jays — will be fielding questions from fans for the remainder of the season via the Internet.

With help from website designer and fellow Miltonian Gary Stanley, Ridley will provide insight into the world of major league baseball as he begins to climb the professional ranks at the rookie ball level in Medicine Hat, Alberta.

The 22-year-old second baseman — whose twin brother Shayne, a shortstop, was acquired by the Baltimore Orioles — recently completed an initial Q&A, which reveals everything from his favourite movie and big league park to his greatest influences and memories in baseball. It can be checked out at <http://www.bluejaysdugout.com>.

Unfortunately enough, this is the ideal time for fans to find out how professional players deal with injury — since Ridley now finds himself on the disabled list.

Anyone with questions for the local prospect can send them to webmaster@bluejaysbaseball.net.

Leigh stands out in Jr. A

Brand new challenge, same old success.

That's pretty much been the story this year for Milton's Cory Leigh — who's enjoyed a remarkably impressive jump to Jr. A lacrosse with the nearby Mississauga Tomahawks.

The former Jr. B Maverick now leads his new team in scoring and sits top 10 in the entire league. Before the holiday deadline Friday, Leigh had 23 goals and 23 assists in 16 games. The 19-year-old local player said a couple of big offensive outputs early on — including a seven-point explosion against Orillia — helped get his season off to a great start.

"It's been pretty good so far," said Leigh of his recent transition. "The key is to just work at stepping it up every game."

So far, that hasn't been much of a problem. Leigh has been a stand-out in almost every one of Mississauga's games this year — and is one of the key reasons they sit 10-6 for third place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association, quite the leap from 1999 when they finished eighth and were bounced from opening round playoff action by Orangeville.

And with the Tomahawks recently acquiring Burlington sniper Scott Stewart, their chances of advancing past round one just got even better.

Local equestrian tops field

Miltonian Heather Manbert-Serniuk delivered a clean sweep en route to victory at June 23 L'International Bromont.

The 34-year-old show jumper — together with nine-year-old Dutch warmblood mare Just Julia — was able to jump the first round clearly and returned for a six horse-rider combination jump-off.

The local pair were the only ones to match their early performance, with a flawless finish of 37.34. United States rider Michael Dorman — aboard Cobra de Garred — stopped the clock at 33.06, but a rail down cost him the win.

Fellow American Jamie Schmidt and Jill Henselwood of Oxford Mills also had single fault rides to round out the top four finishers.

Manbert-Serniuk is the daughter of Hendervale Equestrian Complex owner Janet Manbert — who'll be hosting the Olympic Trials July 22.

Sports Shorts

On par with big effort

Milton's Jamie Webb has shed some strokes and lifted his ranking on the 2000 GolfScene Junior Tour.

The 13-year-old shot an impressive 84 — his best score to date — to take third place in the boys bantam division at Innerkip Highlands Golf Course June 26.

He finished four strokes behind event runner-up and overall tour leader James Brown of Brantford.

Webb's strong showing pushed him ahead of Mount Forest's Caleb Stewart for second spot in the all-around standings.

The local teen's previous results include a second-place finish at Caledon Country Club May 14 and a third-place effort at Milton's Indian Wells May 21.

The tour's next stop is at Elmira Golf Course today.
