User-friendly changes coming to Mountsberg Conservation Area

By LISA CARTWRIGHT

The Champion

Mountsberg Conservation Area will be a place to enjoy all year long once changes spearheaded by Conservation Halton (CH) staff are complete.

Bob Burchett, director of conservation lands services, suggested several improvements to the Campbellville site at a May CH conservation areas/community relations advisory committee meeting.

And members of the CH board of directors endorsed them at a June 22 meeting.

Beginning immediately, organizations can rent the Pancake House and maple syrup display areas for overnight camping.

Projects that will take more time to complete include enclosing the Pancake House, converting the Cameron Barn into a play area and changing the Wildlife Walkway.

Currently, the Pancake House is open to the elements. Staff suggested enclosing it to create a cabin-like building that can be rented out in the summer.

During the maple syrup festival, the enclosed structure would be an ideal place to warm up, Mr. Burchett said.

The historic Cameron Barn would also benefit from some changes, he said.

Right now, the lower area of the barn houses animals, while the upper area is used to store hay.

Staff want to convert the unused portion of the upper portions of the barn into a children's play area.

"Bronte Creek Provincial Park and other tourist attractions have had great success with converting old barns into active play areas," Mr. Burchett stated in his report to the committee.

"The intent is to maintain a rustic look and feel that is in keeping with the historic nature of Cameron Barn."

Community involvement

Not only can the area be used for children, school and community groups can rent it as well, he said.

Staff also suggested moving the flight cages for injured raptors next to the Wildlife Walkway.

"Visual barriers would be installed to minimize stress on the birds while at the same time allowing visitors to observe the raptors as they complete their rehabilitation," Mr. Burchett said.

The flight cages themselves are in disrepair and require some work.

As well, proposed regulations by the Ministry of Natural Resources may require CH to install larger cages for the animals, Mr. Burchett said.

Construction starts for all of the projects depends on the cost, Mr. Burchett said.

"If it is 50 bucks we can go ahead and do it," he said.

"If it's $50,000 we have to go back to the board and ask permission to get the money. It's still in the exploratory mode."
