

Anti-drunk driving campaign next week

Impaired driving can be deadly, and the members of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) want people to know it.

For that reason, the week of September 18 to 22 has been declared MADD Halton Awareness Week.

That means morning rush hour commuters on the GO Train line in Halton and Peel will be met by MADD volunteers bearing campaign buttons next week.

The idea is to raise awareness and funds for the group, which formed to promote safe, sober driving practices.

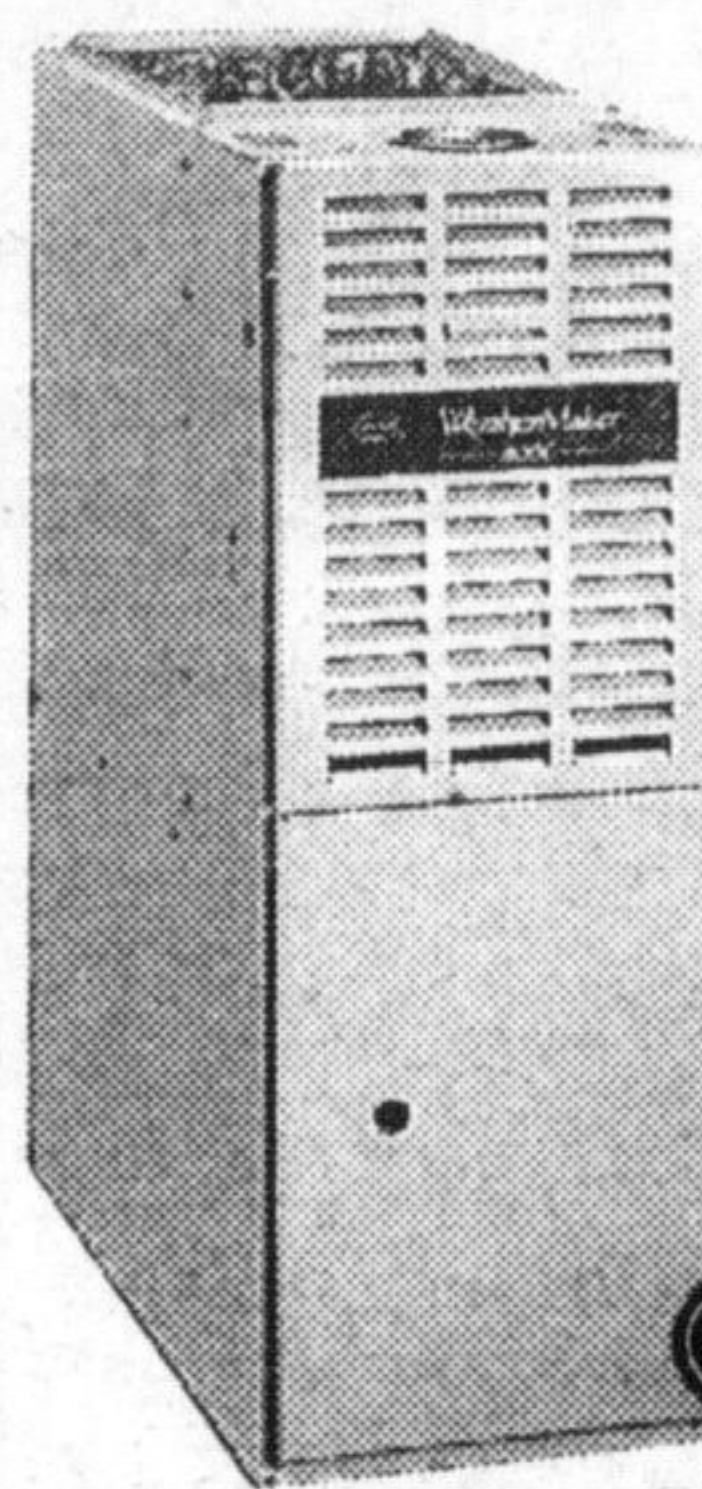

Despite years of crusading their cause, Canadians are still three times more likely to be killed by a drunk driver than become a homicide victim.

And 4.5 Canadians are killed each day as a result of impaired driving, while another 300 are injured, according to MADD statistics.
