Milton honours Trudeau

As surely as flamboyant former Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau changed the country, he also altered the lives of those who met him.

Pierre Trudeau

Mr. Trudeau passed away Thursday at age 80. He suffered from both Parkinson's disease and prostate cancer, and will be buried today in Montreal.

Since his death, the flags at Milton's Town Hall have been flying at half-mast.

And a book of condolences will be available for signing at Milton Public Library.

Library hours are Tuesday to Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m. It's closed Monday.

Penetrating blue eyes is the first impression Milton's Audrea Lear-Costigan had of Mr. Trudeau when she met him in the 1970s.

Having travelled to Ottawa with a host of students from a class she taught at Humber College, Ms Lear-Costigan soon felt the full-throttle presence of the man many still consider to be this nation's strongest supporter.

"His piercing blue eyes were so evident," she recalled.

"Wherever he went, he made an impression."

The charisma that kept Canadians entranced to the end was there in spades.

"He was an intellect, but he had a shyness as well," remembered Ms Lear-
