Seven decades of Clements' art will be on display October 21

Public can enjoy world's beauty through the eyes of Allendale resident

By LISA CARTWRIGHT
The Champion

Since Milton resident Marie Clements was a little girl, she has had a sketchpad in hand, capturing the world as she sees it.

And on October 21, art lovers can look at and purchase works completed by Ms Clements over the course of 70 years.

The retrospective of her work will include recently discovered sketches from England from 1943, watercolour paintings and oils depicting scenes from Halton, the east coast of Canada, the badlands of Arizona and west Africa.

People can also purchase lino blocks that Ms Clements used to make Christmas cards in the 1940s and '50s.

Ms Clements has been drawing since she can remember, but her talent was first discovered by her Grade 4 teacher while taking mandatory art classes.

"The teacher found I could paint roses," Ms Clements said during an interview with the Champion in her room at Allendale. "From then on I painted roses," Ms Clements said.
