

Citizen of the Year to be chosen by residents

Society chapter. The money raised by this event is used to transport local residents to and from cancer treatment sites.

Mr. Boughton was the recipient of the 1994 Business Man of the Year award and is a past nominee for Citizen of the Year.

Ms Scott said she was at a loss for words when she was informed of her nomination.

"It's a great honour to be nominated by your peers and community," the real estate broker said. "I want to thank the chamber for selecting me as one of the three (nominees)."

In 1995, Ms Scott spearheaded the Joyce Scott Non-Profit Homes (JSNPH), dedicated to her daughter Deborah who's physically disabled. The home provided physically disabled young people the chance to develop independence. JSNPH is in the process of building a second home.

She's also one of the founding directors of the United Way of Milton, the founding member of the Milton Business Women's Breakfast, and a member of the Milton District Hospital Auxiliary.

Meanwhile, it took a shocked Ms Jones two days to decide whether or not to accept the nomination.

"Eventually I came to the understanding that perhaps I can raise the awareness of the great need of volunteers in Milton," she said.

"I saw this as a great honour but recognition has never been a reason for my volunteer work. (The nomination) made me feel very humble. There are so many people in Milton who also spend many hours each week volunteering whom I feel deserve this more than I do."

Ms Jones is deeply involved with St. Paul's United Church, serving on the pastoral care committee, the worship committee, the intergenerational services committee and the adult education committee. She leads the Lenten bible study and the annual week of guided prayer. She's also pastor for the Sun Rise Easter Morning service at the Mill Pond and was chairperson of the local Block Parent program.

The award recipient will be chosen by Milton residents. A ballot and voting information can be found on page 23.

The winner will be announced at the Community Awards gala April 21 at Granite Ridge Golf Club.
