

Young Drivers - teaching people to drive collision-free

Young Drivers of Canada teaches students a collision-free approach to driving.

"It's not a one-time topic in class," said Tim Danter, the centre director for both the Milton and Oakville locations of Young Drivers.

The approach to collision-free, or defensive driving, is taught to students from the first time they step into a class to the last time they receive lessons in the car.

Young Drivers of Canada has been teaching people how to drive defensively since 1968.

It is the only driving program in North America to receive ISO 9001 registration. The registration ensures people that Young Drivers will "do what we say and prove it."

Mr. Danter said Young Drivers' promise is to help reduce the number of collisions on the road and to make sure people drive pro-actively.

People who take Young Drivers are being taught by professionals who update their skills and knowledge on an annual basis. And students learn on vehicles that are two model years old or newer. Students receive 25 hours of in-class theory and 13 lessons in-car.

"This equals to 10 and a quarter hours behind the wheel," Mr. Danter said.

Every student is also taught freeway and highway driving, emergency maneuvers and more. Young Drivers which won the Milton's Choice Award for Best Driving School, provides their own learning materials including booklets and videos for the in-class portion of learning.

The in-car lessons are a one-to-one ratio because "the last thing people need is an audience."

Young Drivers of Canada (Milton division) is located at 243 Main St. E. 905-875-0480

Milton Photo - working that little bit harder

The latest technology, prompt service and staff who care is what makes Milton Photo the place of choice for many Milton residents.

"It's a family-run business," said Emily Grezoux who runs Milton Photo with her brother Ron Burgoyne. Their father James started the business in 1968.

"We do try to work that little bit harder, go the extra mile. We really do care."

Milton Photo, which won the Milton's Choice Award for Best Photo Store for the last two years, offers photo finishing including enlargements and borders.

"It's the postcard look that was popular in the '60s and '70s," she said.

The store also does copying.

Customers can bring in their old photographs and Milton Photo will enlarge or reduce the picture — all without a negative.

"People feel comfortable because the picture doesn't leave the store."

The pair also tries to keep up with the latest technology. At this time, they are trying to purchase a machine that will do restoration work and machines that download and print photographs off of digital cameras and floppy disks.

"We do all we can to try and be on top of stuff."

Milton Photo also offers a large selection of unique frames not found in most stores. They also sell film, photo albums, compact cameras and more.

Arriving soon — digital cameras, accessories and on-site printing.

Milton Photo is located in the Milton Mall. For details call 878-3361.
