Pair honoured for support of DARE

A pair of well known Halton residents were honoured recently for their contributions to the Halton DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program.

Regional chair Joyce Savoline and Paul Auty of Georgetown Chrysler were formally recognized at the April 26 Halton Regional Police Services Board meeting.

Ms Savoline has been a long-time supporter of DARE in the region and Mr. Auty recently donated a new Chrysler PT Cruiser to the program.

According to Halton DARE board co-chair Suzanne Algar, the program has been a beneficiary of the Chairman's Charity Golf Classic for the past three years. For her part, Ms

Savoline said she was "thrilled" by the award, especially coming from Halton Regional Police who, she said, boasted a 90 per cent approval rating from the public in a survey conducted in February.

"I appreciate the kind of work you do. Work most people don't even want to think about," said Ms Savoline.

In honouring Mr. Auty, Halton police Chief Ean Algar said his contribution of the PT Cruiser underscores the importance of corporate sponsorship, without which DARE "would not be in existence."

"This is truly an honour and we appreciate accepting this," said Mr. Auty. "It is truly a privilege to live, work and raise a family in north Halton."

Special day for child care providers Friday

Child care organizations nationwide have joined together to declare Friday, May 11 as Provider Appreciation Day.

The Halton Child Care Registry, which is leading the effort locally, is encouraging parents with children in a home child care setting to take the day to show their home child care provider how much they're appreciated.

The Halton Child Care Registry suggests sending flowers, having the children make and decorate a cake for the occasion, or buying something for the play area.

The Halton Child Care Registry is a non-profit organization providing access to child care in the region.
