

Region's tax web site is getting hits

Halton property owners can now go on-line to find out how their new property assessment will affect their taxes.

The tax estimator, located at www.region.halton.on.ca was launched last Friday, and over the weekend had more than 200 hits.

Halton residents can get an estimate of their 2001 tax bill by calling up their properties using the address or assessment roll number. A computer program will calculate their taxes and indicate if they are eligible for a phase-in of their taxes.

To soften the blow for property owners facing a big tax increase due to the new assessment, the Region for this year only will pick up the difference up to a maximum of $10,000 on the bills of people who have at least a $300 and 15 per cent increase.

Next year those property owners will have to pay the full bill.

The phase-in is expected to cost the Region about $2 million. It plans to get the Province to pay back $600,000 of that as it relates to education taxes.

Regional council has also approved a tax deferral policy to help low-income seniors and the disabled, a tax rebate program for charitable organizations and provincially-mandated caps on assessment-related increases for multi-residential, commercial and industrial properties.

Woman loses $5,000 stored in donated suit

A local woman is appealing to the community after discovering her husband's income tax refund — $5,000 cash — was stored in a suit she donated to the Milton Salvation Army.

"My husband kept the money in the inner jacket pocket," said the woman, who didn't want to be identified.

"It's an old suit, about 10 years old. He (husband) hasn't worn it in about five years. We're in the process of moving so I was cleaning up around the house.

Unbeknownst to me, he was keeping $5,000 in cash in the pocket."

The woman has put signs in the window of the Salvation Army in hopes someone will read it and return the money.

"I feel just dreadful. I hope a good Samaritan will discover the money and return it."

The size 42 suit is corduroy and beige in colour.

Anyone with information pertaining to the money is asked to call the Salvation Army at (905) 875-1022.
