Not much remains of the house once owned by murder victim Fred Shepperd.

Old Sheppard house burns to ground in suspicious fire

A fire at a Steeles Avenue residence where an elderly man was murdered six years ago remains under investigation.

The vacant wooden frame dwelling — adjacent to the out-house where 77-year-old Fred Sheppard was shot to death by his granddaughter's boyfriend in March, 1995 — was fully engulfed with flames when firefighters arrived shortly after 4:30 a.m.

It took a couple of hours to extinguish the blaze and the house was burned to the ground.

"With the home being vacant for several years the circumstances (of the fire) are certainly questionable," said Milton Fire Department spokesman Captain Mark Cross.

The house, which was sold by relatives of the Sheppard family following the murder victim's death but wasn't occupied, had previously been a target of vandals.

The house had no hydro or water services.
