

FALL HOME IMPROVEMENT

Fall is the best time to plant flowering bulbs for years of pleasure

By combining a wide variety of flower bulbs, you can create 100 days of continuous bloom in your garden as well as containers. One of the earliest to appear will be gently nodding snowdrops and winter aconites in January. The latest - gloriously colorful Alliums - bloom in June. You can further your creative ambitions by varying the height and planting depth of your bulbs.

Flowering Ideas.

Before planting, it's wise to make a simple plan for yourself. Take the time to consider each bulb's flowering period, varying heights of different bulbs, and each one's unique shape. Beginning in mid-winter when snowdrops first appear, it's for you to create dazzling colour with spring blooming bulbs straight through mid-summer when Dutch Iris appear. Then your summer bulbs will take over, providing a beautiful spectrum of colour through late fall. The most stunning effects are achieved by planting bulbs in bold groups. For example, 10-15 tulips, 5-10 narcissi, and 20-25 crocuses will make a big impact, and ensure gor-
