A sports story in Tuesday's Champion contained incorrect information.

The article regarding the 2002 Optimist Tournament reported that bantam goaltender Troy Squance earned a 2-0 shutout against Stoney Creek — when in fact it was Eric Bortlis who was between the pipes for the victory, as well as a 2-2 tie with Georgetown.

The Champion regrets this error as well as any inconvenience it may have caused.

Ferrier earns bronze at nationals

Drury freshman caps impressive year with medal at Canadian Cadet event

Gary Ferrier punctuated this season's wrestling campaign with a huge exclamation mark last weekend in Fredericton, New Brunswick.

Capping an impressive high school freshman year that included a top-eight finish at OFSAA, E.C. Drury's promising 57-kilogram grappler captured bronze in his debut at the national cadet championships.

The only blemish to Ferrier's 7-1 performance came in round two — when he was upstaged, surprisingly enough for a national event, by an opponent from New York.

The Canadian showcase — much to the dismay of many coaches — has traditionally been open to wrestlers on both sides of the border.

Ferrier fell short against his more seasoned American rival, but prevailed at every other turn.

His half-dozen wins included a pinfall victory and three grand superiority decisions.

In the bronze medal bout, he trailed much of the way against Sarnia's Rinnier Carrillo but delivered a last-minute power reversal which inadvertently separated Carrillo's shoulder — bringing a premature end to what had been up to that point a highly-entertaining showdown.

Ferrier knocked off opponents from three other provinces and one territory to reach the third-place bout. His stiffest preliminary challenge came from Nunavet's Daniel Young, who matched him move-for-move before getting beat 6-4.

The bronze was his eighth medal of the season and lifted his overall win count to 36.

Meanwhile, E.C. Drury's Carl Chan also competed at last weekend's nationals and earned valuable experience as well as a victory over a host-province grappler.

Triathlon clinics on

It's once again time to get in gear for the Milton Women's Triathlon.

For a third straight year, organizers of the local event — which is now part of a three-race series — will hold a series of training clinics to help both novice and advanced athletes prepare for the Labour Day weekend competition.

The clinics begin April 23 with a Safe Training Practice presentation at the Milton Leisure Centre.

Follow-up sessions entitled Putting It All Together and Dry Run

And Transition are scheduled for June 18 and August 6 — both being held at Kelso Conservation Area.

All three clinics will run from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Each session costs $25 per participant, or all three can be attended for $60.

This year's triathlon will be held September 1 at Kelso.

To sign up for either the clinics or event, call Sue Terrise at (519) 837-1335, or e-mail her at sterrise@city.guelph.on.ca.
