

Champion wins newspaper awards at OCNA convention

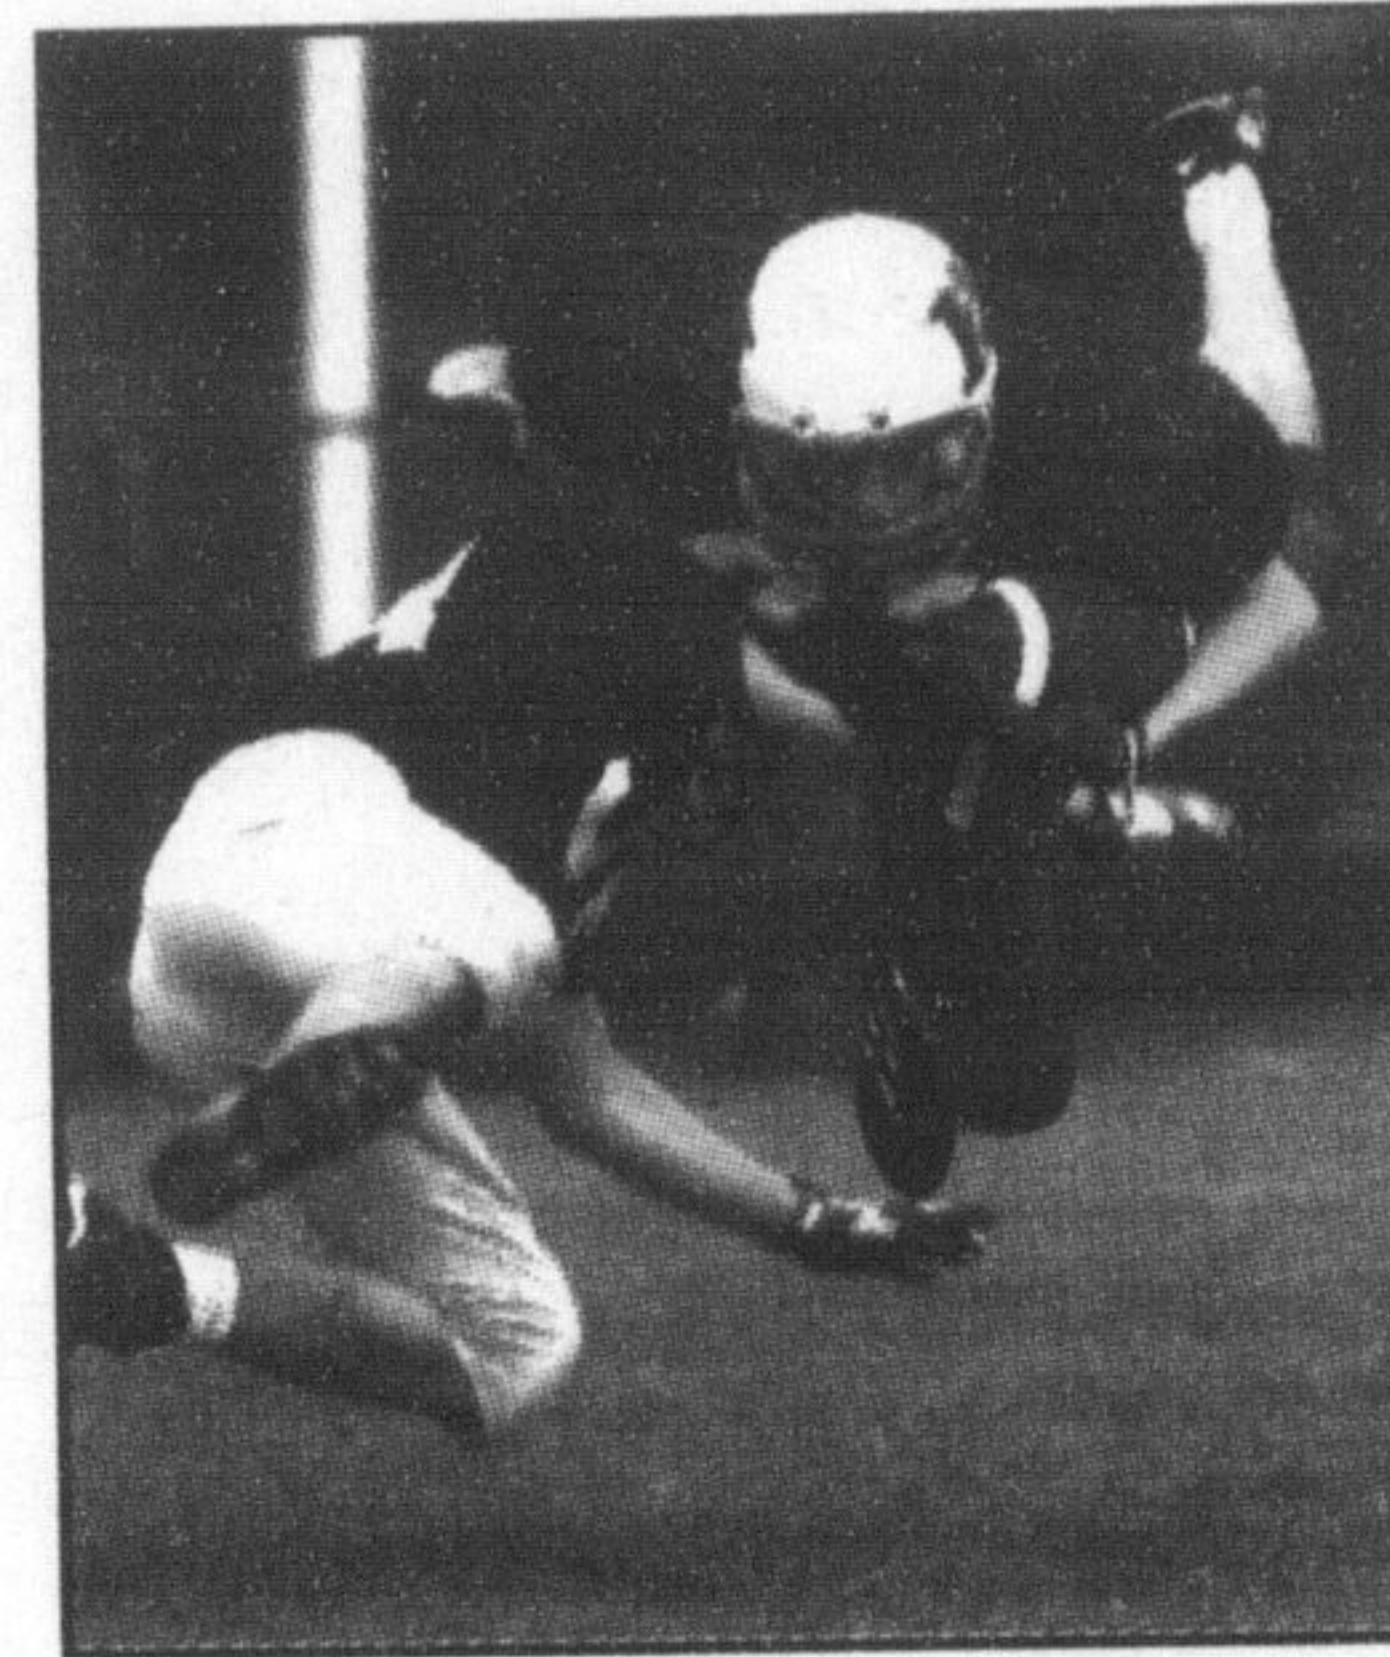

The Milton Canadian Champion walked away with three second-place showings at Saturday's Ontario Community Newspaper Association (OCNA) awards night.

The gala was held at the Marriott Hotel in Toronto.

The Champion placed second in the General Excellence category (6,500 to 12,499 circulation). According to the judges, "The Milton Canadian Champion impressed us with its clean design, an exceptional use of photographs, and an overall impression of being in touch with the community it serves."

The News/North Yellowknife placed first, while the Stouffville Tribune placed third.

The Champion's long-time photographer, Graham Paine, received second place for the Photographer of the Year award. This was the first year the OCNA implemented such an award.

Champion photographer Graham Paine won second in Ontario in the Best Sports Photo category for this shot.

According to judge Brain Clark, of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, "Graham Paine of the Milton Canadian Champion covered the people of Milton from their local community to farther afield at the Canada Summer Games in London. His close-up photo of a five-year-old hockey player stood out among a number of strong photos in this entry."

The Oakville Beaver's Barrie Erskine placed first, while the Etobicoke Guardian's Ian Kelso placed third.

Mr. Paine also received second place for Best Sports Photo, which depicted mid-air football action.

Commented judge Grant Black, senior photographer of the Calgary Herald, "Graham Paine took a solid football photograph. The background is clean, the action peak. It puts the reader on the field."

Placing first was Sandy Poitras of the Alliston Herald and third place went to Barrie Erskine of the Oakville Beaver.

Mr. Paine also placed second for Best Feature Photo for the York Guardian.
