

Compost free for taking

Halton's bi-annual compost give away is back at the Halton Waste Management Site.

Compost created from collected residential yard waste is ready for the garden and Halton Region is giving it away until Tuesday (excluding Sunday).

"This event is growing in popularity every year. And it is a perfect example of Halton's commitment to encouraging community involvement in waste diversion," said Regional Chair Joyce Savoline.

"Not only is this an opportunity for residents to get out, meet their neighbours and do something great for their garden, it is also an opportunity for all of us to give back to the community."

As is tradition with the compost give away, residents are encouraged to make a non-perishable food donation when receiving compost.

The food will be donated to local food banks.

The Halton Waste Management Site is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and is located at 5400 Regional Road 25.
