Lots of choices available

• from ONTARIO page 19 hasn't typed in a search and received back thousands, if not hundreds of thousands of choices? Librarians can help you find the answer that's contained within the mess of possible answers at a fraction of the time.

For those days you can't make it into the library, we have provided a host of choices from our home-page (www.mpl.on.ca) so that you can search and place holds on items in the collections, renew items, check your personal record for items out, and find answers from our pre-selected Web sites. At the same time, we subscribe to a number of online databases that you can search (with a valid library card) including encyclopedias, health and drug information and Canadian and American magazines.

However, if you can come to the library during October 21 to 27, why not join in the celebrations of Ontario Public Library Week? Adults can take part in a trivia contest while children can try and guess the titles of books suggested by our collection of book-related characters and puppets. As well, special guests have been invited to read to children during pre-school story times.

Mayor Gord Krantz will visit Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. A firefighter and a police officer will attend the two other story times Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 and Thursday evening at 6:45. The Thursday evening program is a drop-in and all are welcome.

I'll do research

• from THREE on page 18

And then my made-up story was met with blank stares. I told them how I had met up with a grizzly bear up north a couple weeks ago while camping with a friend. I tightened the laces on my running shoes and stretched my legs to get ready to run. "Are you crazy?" my friend reportedly said. "You can't outrun a grizzly bear."

"I don't have to outrun the bear," I replied. "I just have to outrun you."

We never did have the vote. I kept delaying it, waiting until I had at least got a few laughs. But, I was out-funnied all night and I knew I'd come in last again.

I'll be ready by Christmas, though, I've got two months to research some funny stories. If that doesn't work I'll go back to voting for the fattest person, at least that's a vote I know I can win.

HEALING THROUGH AN OUTSTRETCHED HAND

Thanksgiving Day was near. The first grade teacher gave her class a fun assignment -- to draw a picture of something for which they were thankful.

Most students would celebrate the holiday with turkey and other traditional goodies of the season. These items, the teacher thought, would be the subjects of most of her student's art. And they were.

But Douglas made a different kind of picture. Douglas was a different kind of boy. He wore sorrow on his sleeve. His furrowed countenance evidenced deep turmoil within his soul. Just a few months prior, he'd lost his mother, to a year-long struggle with cancer. He was having difficulty reconciling his emotions with her demise. As other children played at recess, Douglas was likely to stand close by his teacher's side. One could only guess at the pain Douglas felt behind those sad eyes.

Yes, his picture was different. When asked to draw a picture of something for which he was thankful, he drew a hand. Nothing else. Just an empty hand.

His abstract image captured the imagination of his peers. Whose hand could it be? One child guessed it was the hand of a farmer, because farmers raise turkeys. Another suggested a police officer, because the police protect and care for people. Still others guessed it was the hand of God, for God feeds us. And so the discussion went -- until the teacher almost forgot the young artist himself.

When the children had gone on to other assignments, she paused at Douglas' desk, bent down, and asked him whose hand it was.

The little boy looked away and murmured, "It's yours, teacher."

She recalled the times she had taken his hand and walked with him here or there, as she had the other students. How often had she said, "Take my hand, Douglas, we'll go outside." Or, "Let me show you how to hold your pencil." Or, "Let's do this together." Douglas was most thankful for his teachers hand.

Brushing aside a tear, she went on with her work.

The story speaks of more than thankfulness. It says something about teachers teaching and parents parenting and friends showing friendship, and how much it means to the 'Douglases' of the world. They might not always say thanks but they'll remember the hand that reaches out.

Christian communities are characterized by love. Jesus Christ wisely stated that it was love that would distinguish individuals as His Disciples. To learn more about loving your neighbour, visit a local church this week.
