New Kilbride art gallery combines couple's artistic talents into one

By FANNIE SUNSHINE

Tracy and Dave Repchuk wanted to combine their artistic talents into one union.

So the couple decided to place Ms Repchuk's poems next to her husband's paintings, creating one piece of art.

"We've owned Bravo Software Group in Burlington for 20 years and did the art work on the side," Ms Repchuk said.

"I was writing poems and I thought, 'how can we make our work better and make it mainstream?' Poetry is such a beautiful way of expression. So I gave my husband a poem and asked him to paint a picture to accompany it"

The grand opening of DOCNOT Gallery will take place tomorrow from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at 6508 McNiven Rd. in Kilbride.

The opening, dubbed 'Hand Delivering a Dream', will feature nine new acrylic paintings and poems created by the couple, Ms Repchuk continued.

"This will be the first time the public will see this series of work," she said, adding individuals wishing to attend the opening can register at www.docnot.com.

She said some of the paintings depict a couple walking in the rain, a serene setting of tea cups on a table and birds in a feeder.

"Our next series will also be acrylic and the third series will be watercolours."

Ms Repchuk said she's been writing poetry since age 12 and came in second out of 3,000 entries for an international poetry contest in Washington, DC last summer.

"It was the first poem I had released."

Along with art work, the opening will also feature hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction for wine and various gift baskets, she said.

In addition as her work as a poet, she recently wrote 13 shows for a television series she created.

Although the show, Luggage for Lizards, has been accepted by a production company in British Columbia, it wasn't known when the show will be televised, she said, adding the show is about how to travel with your kids.

"We're hoping for next September but we will have to see."
