A perfect match starts with a great first date

(NC)—Andrew Anthony has been on a lot of first dates — and his wife doesn't mind a bit! Anthony, host of Life Network's Matchmaker, has seen the good, the bad and the ugly on the road to love and offers a few tips for great first dates.

- Relax. Daters, like ravenous coyotes, can smell fear. If you're relaxed, your date will be too.

- Be a gifted dater. Wine and flowers are popular tokens that demonstrate you've made an effort. But don't overdo it. The idea is to impress and not smother — or else there may not be a second date.

- Mind your manners. Conduct yourself as if your mother were at the next table. Get the chair, the door, and — if you're the "asker" — the cheque.

- Make it memorable. Demonstrate originality by taking your date somewhere different. But play it safe — meet on neutral ground.

- Speak and be heard. Figuring out if there'll be a second date requires at least a little conversation. Places that prohibit get-to-know-you chat, such as movies or loud nightclubs, are not ideal first date choices.

Love gets a little help on Matchmaker, airing on Life Network weekdays at 8:30 p.m. ET, as friends set up their loveless pals on dates and follow the couples with cameras.
