

Councillor eager to see the report

well water fluoridation — said if there's a "human outcry" against it, he would support another referendum, if that was possible.

Last fall, Councillor Rick Malboeuf tried to get council support to have local staff examine the issue of well water fluoridation, but was unsuccessful. Instead, council voted to have the Region look into the process and it's that report that's expected to be released this month.

Mr. Malboeuf said in an interview he hasn't taken a position for or against well water fluoridation but is eager to see the report.

He feels strongly the issue needs to be looked into and the Region's oral health report certainly was a good starting point.

Also, he said he's talked to dentists who have told him they support well water fluoridation.

Mr. Malboeuf noted he grew up in Quebec drinking fluoridated water.
