Hunter won't seek another term on municipal council

After nine successive years as a Milton politician, Ward 2 Councillor Wally Hunter won't be seeking a fourth term in office in this fall's municipal election.

"I have enjoyed my time as a councillor in Milton and I would like to thank taxpayers for the support and trust they have placed in me over the past nine years," said the 35-year-old Bay Street venture capitalist.

He won his first election in 1994. As a councillor, Mr. Hunter focused his efforts on improving the Town's financial issues, including things like the establishment of reserve and debt reduction policies.

He's currently chairperson of the administration and planning committee, the Milton Economic Development Committee and past representative on the Milton Public Library Board and Milton Chamber of Commerce. He also assisted in the establishment of the Chris Hadfield Educational Trust.

While Mr. Hunter hasn't ruled out future involvement in politics, he said balancing his home, work and political life has become tough.

"My global travel schedule as a venture capitalist and time away from my family certainly played a large part in my decision to retire from local politics."

He said he spends a lot of time travelling to places like California.

Mr. Hunter is hoping for new people to register this fall.

"I strongly believe that new faces and ideas are important to any organization and I am pleased to see such strong interest in the Ward 2 seat.

"I believe in not letting people get stale in political positions."

So far five people have registered for the two Milton councillor positions in Ward 2. The other current councillor in that ward is Art Melanson.

Mr. Hunter also encouraged more business people to run in the election. "We need more people that are not professional politicians and have an understanding of the business world and the importance of the entrepreneurial spirit."

Overall, Mr. Hunter said the experience as a politician was worth it. "I don't regret ever getting involved in it."

Meanwhile, Wards 1 and 3 Regional Councillor Barry Lee registered for re-election Wednesday afternoon.

Mayor Gord Krantz has registered to seek another term as mayor. He's got competition as Wards 2 and 4 Regional Councillor Rick Malboeuf has also filed to run for the mayor's position.

Ward 4 Councillor Ron Furik has registered to run for Wards 2 and 4 regional councillor.

Ward 3 councillors Cindy Lunau and Ken Keates said they intend to run but haven't registered yet.

Ward 4 Councillor John Challinor, Ward 1 Councillor Rick Day, Mr. Melanson and Ward 1 Councillor Brian Penman said they haven't decided yet. The cut-off date to register is September 26.

Corradetti enters race in Ward 4

Todd Corradetti of Anderson Avenue has registered to run for a Ward 4 councillor position in this fall's municipal election.

The current Ward 4 councillors are John Challinor and Ron Furik.

Mr. Furik is leaving the post to run for Wards 2 and 4 regional councillor while Mr. Challinor hasn't stated his intentions.

A total of 17 people have registered to run in the election.
