British invasion at museum

Halton Region Museum is set for a British invasion — of classic cars, that is.

On Sunday British Saloon Car Club of Canada members from near and far will meet from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. to pay homage to the Austin and other famous automobiles such as the Triumph, Morris, Rover, Jaguar and Rolls-Royce.

British cars from the pre-war era to present-day will be showcased on the museum grounds — located inside Kelso Conservation Area — offering enthusiasts a wide range of vehicles to admire.

A 1958 four-door Austin Westminster and the rare Riley 2.5 litre Drophead are sure to be particular crowd-pleasers at the day-long event.

The event is free with admission to Kelso, and visitors are invited to bring a picnic lunch and tour the museum's newly-renovated Alexander Barn and visitor centre.
