

Add reading to New Year's goals

Is your New Year's resolution list full of cutbacks and the word 'no'? Less food; less work; no spending? Why not use a list that stresses the positives, instead? Here is a list of our favourite New Year's Resolutions:

1. I will reread a book I loved as a child.
2. I will finally read that classic from high school that I've been avoiding.
3. I will find a book of poetry and read some aloud.
4. I will spend an hour in aimless browsing at the library.
5. I will read a book written in the year I was born.
6. I will create a journal and keep notes about the books and magazines I read.
7. I will assemble a list of my favourite people and send them my ideas about books (favourites, recent reads, and the like.)

8. I will read a book to a child.
9. I will gather a few friends and together we'll read a play out loud.
10. I will read a book on the history of my town.
11. I will read a book written from a political point of view totally opposite my own.
12. I will read a book about a place I've never been.
13. I will reread a book that I just didn't

"get" when I was 18.

14. I will read a book written by someone I've never heard of before.

15. I will ask a librarian to show me some print and on-line resources for readers.

From plays, to poetry, classic novels to new bestsellers, ancient history to popular travelogues, beloved books from childhood to new award winners, the Milton Public Library has the resources to help make 2004 shine with the pleasure and adventure provided by the written word.

Library staff are eager to help you find the books you need to make the resolutions come true.

Come in and check us out.

Immersion French info night Tuesday

The Halton District School Board is hosting an information evening concerning its Immersion French programs, which begin in grade 1.

The meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Martin Street Public School, 184 Martin St., and is for parents of students at Martin Street, EW Foster and Robert Baldwin public schools.

This information session is for parents of children in kindergarten who will be entering grade one in September.

Registration forms for the Immersion French program are available at any Halton District School Board school. Applications should be returned to the students' home schools by January 23.

Parents with questions about the Immersion French program or registration information can call Marcelle Faulds at (905) 335-3663, (905) 842-3014 or (905) 878-8451.
