

Kobow advances in singing contest

Milton songstress Alysha Kobow, 17, took time off from recording her first CD to compete in Sunday's Western Talent Competition.

Ms Kobow competed at the semi-final vocal competition at the Grand River Casino and was chosen to advance to the upcoming quarter finals, which will be held in London, Ont., in September.

Ms Kobow garnered much praise from judges at the competition, who were impressed that she had performed a song she wrote herself.

Free concert held at Victoria Park

Calling all music fans.

The Ontario Academy of Music will put on a free concert at Victoria Park, in front of Town Hall, 43 Brown St., at 1 p.m. June 20.

Piano, guitar, vocal and drum students of all ages will perform in solos, duets and in groups.

Bring a lawn chair and a picnic basket. There will be free freezies and face painting for the kids.

Peace!
