BISHOP REDING HIGH SCHOOL

BR students spent the long weekend filling up on turkey,
 Now they are back at school feeling refreshed, awake and perky.
 The Thanksgiving food drive was definitely a hit, We reached our target but we still didn't quit.
 Ms. Marsalek's class earned the right to boast They hauled in over 1000 cans to contribute the most!
 We had 3500 as our final count
 Now isn't that a great amount?
 Meanwhile all the fall sports teams have been going hard,
 A few have fallen short, but they haven't put down their guard.
 Senior boys football played Notre Dame in an evening game under the lights,
 Although they lost 59-0 they learned from their mistakes and will reach new heights.
 Everyone at last week's varsity boy's volleyball game was on the end of their chair,
 They put in a good fight against Georgetown High and only lost by a hair!
 Hey guess what! There's something new to BR this year,
 It's a program that allows grade nines to receive guidance from a peer.
 They meet with their grade 12 mentor a few times a week,
 To learn the ropes, and to get the advice that they seek.
 So if you'd like your problems solved,
 Speak to Anna Massari to get involved!
 We hope you enjoyed this week's edition in rhyme,
 That is all for now, we'll see you next time!

E.C. DRURY HIGH SCHOOL

One fine day while strolling through the Locker Bay, Kim and Katie stumbled into Mr. J.
 "Hello girls," he said. "Check it out! We're having the Battle of the Bay!"
 "What's that?" Katie asked. She looked around and saw the Spartan grapplers strutting their stuff for all to see. Mr. J handed the girls a shiny gold envelope with the Spartan seal. Curious, Kim opened it to find an anonymous note that read,
 "To the Dateline Drury team, who correspond from the E.C. scene. Go to the gym to find your next clue, it will be floating on something blue."
 "I got this from a mysterious cloaked Spartan. She told me to pass it on to you," said My. J.
 "Where should we start?" said Katie.
 "I don't know, maybe we should ask Mr. Houldcroft," said Kim. The girls made their way down to the H.A.L. office, where they found Mr. Houldcroft and Mr. Sheppard recording the Spartan teams' stats.
 "Hey Mr. Houldcroft! Look what we found!" exclaimed Katie as she handed him the envelope.
 "Wow girls, this is exciting. But not nearly as exciting as our junior boy's volleyball team's victory against cross-town rivals Milton District," he said.
 "Wait a minute! Don't forget our girl's field hockey team. Which placed second in the astroturf tournament at Lamport Stadium in Toronto on October 6th!" Mr. Sheppard said.
 Frustrated with the lack of assistance, the girls left the office in search of their next clue. Suddenly, Katie had an idea.
 "Kim! It'll be in the pool! The clue said 'floating on something blue'." Off they ran to the pool where to their surprise they found a toy boat with another golden envelope. After diving in, Kim and Katie opened the second clue.
 "To the Dateline Drury crew, this is clue number two. Go to the place where dances are held, and the skills of actors and actresses meld."
 "Oh I know where this one is!" said Kim. "It's in the auditorium!" The girls rushed off to the stage only to find that Mrs. Roberts and the Drama at Drury team were rehearsing for Bats in the Belfry. Katie looked up at the ceiling and saw another golden envelope. She reached up and yanked it down.
 "Kim and Katie this is your last clue to seek. Hope you've enjoyed recounting this past week. Go buy your dance ticket for the 21st of October. You will find me and your search will be over."
 Excited to find out who the mystery person was, Kim and Katie sprinted to the ticket booth and there they saw a mysterious cloaked person sitting behind the counter. Ready to buy their tickets, they slowly approached the booth. Suddenly, the mysterious Spartan removed her hood.
 "ERIKA?!" Kim and Katie said in unison.
 "Hey girls. I thought this might be a fun idea for this week's Dateline Drury. Not bad, eh?" She said as they laughed and went to write this week's article.

MILTON DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL “MUSTANG MESSENGER”

Welcome back Mustangs! We hope everyone had a safe and happy holiday. Now it is time to get back into the swing of things after a long weekend.
 Football, Football, Football, both our senior and junior football teams have been tearing up the field. On Monday, October 4th, our juniors sported the mustang spirit while playing their game at home. They came through short after the third quarter but played a great game. They are now one and two in their season. They re next game is Wednesday, October 13 at home against Burlington Central. Our senior team played on Wednesday, October 6; they also played at home, against Christ the King. They boys showed strong determination on the field with a fan club like no other. The boys played a respectable game, falling through short in the end. Our mustang football teams show an immense amount of school spirit. All of the boys can be seen wearing their team jerseys around the school every game day! Way to go guys!
 Our Cross-country team was very successful while attending their third meet of the season. Thomas Nightingale placed 45th out of 700 runners at the Iona invitational, October 5. Brad Hoy finished 22nd out of 400 runners in a similar race. A good run by all, and good luck in the near future.
 Believe it or not, MDHS hockey has already started their tryouts. With the weather getting colder hockey season soon approaches. Both boys and girls begin their tryouts Tuesday, October 12, bright and early. Their season does not begin until November.
 To all M.D.H.S. aspiring writers, we are holding a playwriting festival. Students write a one-act play between ten to thirty minutes in length. It may be selected for performance next May. If you are interested, see Ms. Graham.
 M.D.H.S. has great extracurricular music programs. Throughout the year they put on a series of performances. Jazz band meets Mondays at 3:30pm, Sr. Concert band meets Tuesday at 3:30pm, and choir meets Wednesday at 8:00am. If you are interested in joining any of our bands, we encourage you to come out and show us what you've got.
 Last Thursday our grade tens, twelve s and staff returned from the Wilderness North trip. This trip gave the grade tens the opportunity to learn leadership and team building strategies. They all returned safe with smiles on their faces. The trip was a great success and the staff and students look forward to next year s trip.
 M.D.H.S. would also like to wish a good luck to our grade twelve students who have already been attending the university/college presentations for various institutions. Grade twelves begin applying to school in November. Good Luck!
 That is all for now, Mustangs keep up the good work in your classes!
