Odour closes high school for two days

By MELANIE HENNESSEY
The Champion

Students and staff at Milton District High School were sent home from school Tuesday morning after an antifreeze-like chemical odour was detected in the building.

The smell that closed the school for two days came about from a routine heating system flush, explained Halton District School Board Communications Officer Marnie Denton.

"It (the odour) was found to be irritating for some of the students and staff," she said.

She added that it wasn't feasible to open windows to ventilate the school because of the cool, wet weather.

School Principal Ian Jones said the bigger issue was actually the mess the flushing created. He said since sediment was being cleaned out of the heating system, the pipes were leaking, creating a potentially-hazardous situation, like a pipe bursting over a student's desk and splashing them in the face.

"I just didn't want something to happen to anybody. It (closing the school) was a precautionary measure," he said.

Ms Denton said there were no reports of students or staff requiring medical attention from the fumes.

Grade 12 student Belinda Alzner was at school Tuesday morning when it was announced the building was being shut down temporarily. She said she didn't notice any smell, but saw the leaky pipes that concerned Mr. Jones.

"The dripping from the roof was all that you could notice — it was a really nasty colour," the 17 year old said.

Mr. Jones said school staff started sending everyone home Tuesday at about 9:20 a.m., having buses come back to pick up some of the students.

"We made the decision to get the kids out of here before anything could happen," he said.

With the school empty Tuesday and Wednesday, Ms Denton said crews were sent in to complete the work quickly to get things back to normal.

While the heating system flush isn't an annual event, Mr. Jones said maybe the school should consider doing it more frequently to potentially avoid a messy situation down the road.

All evening events that were scheduled to take place earlier this week at the local high school were also cancelled as a precautionary measure.

Students and staff returned to school yesterday.
