

Error made in story on auction

Incorrect information appeared in Tuesday's article about tomorrow's Christmas TV Auction, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Milton.

The article stated a pull-out section would appear in today's issue listing the items up for bid and when the section they're in would close.

In fact, the special section appeared in Tuesday's paper.

Those who missed the section can visit the club's Web site at www.miltonrotaryclub.com for a downloadable version.

The Champion regrets any inconvenience this may have caused.

Revised version of emergency guide is now available

Local residents can now pick up an updated version of Halton's Personal Emergency Preparedness Guide at regional and municipal government offices and facilities.

The guide, which was first released in 2002, provides information and outlines steps that can be taken toward personal emergency preparedness.

It contains important telephone numbers and outlines the six basic components that should be included in a family emergency survival kit. The guide also addresses many different kinds of emergencies, including both those that are weather-related and human-caused.

It also provides information on sheltering and what to do in the event an evacuation becomes necessary.

The guide's available on the Internet at www.region.halton.on.ca or local municipal government Web sites. It can also be requested by phoning Access Halton at (905) 825-6000 or the closest municipal office.
