

Women charged in connection with refund scam at Wal-Mart

Wal-Mart security guards put an end to a sneaky method of scamming last week.

On November 30, guards noticed a pair of shoppers taking discarded receipts found outside and pairing them with corresponding items from store shelves. They were then returning the merchandise for a refund.

A 34-year-old woman and a 40-year-old woman, both from Guelph, were charged with fraud and possession of stolen property.

Tuesday just after midnight, the rear window of a vehicle parked on Laurier Avenue was broken, causing $400 in damage. That same night $200 damage was caused to a Nissan Altima, which had its rear window smashed with a rock while parked at Guelph Line and Hwy. 401.
