“THE ROYAL REPORT”

Katie Nadalin

Siobhan Desroches

BISHOP REDING HIGH SCHOOL

According to America Online, 90% of teens and young adults communicate with their peers using instant messaging. Therefore, we decided to make this article in the style of an online chat message between BR's Royal Reporters Katie Nadalin (BRgurlly05) and Siobhan Desroches (RoYaL_RePoRtA)!

RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Hey Katie!
BRgurlly05 says: Hi Siobhan :) what's up?
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Oh nothing, I just got back from the junior girls ALL ONTARIO catholic volleyball tournament!
BRgurlly05 says: Oh cool! How did the girls do?
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: GREAT! They came in first in their pool and fourth overall! They played so well; I think the only team that defeated them was the champion of the tournament!
BRgurlly05 says: Awesome! The team has worked really hard this season and definitely deserve their success!
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Yeah, GO BR EH! I wish I could go to more of their games but I am so busy attending SOMA meetings.
BRgurlly05 says: SOMA? What's SOMA?
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: It stands for Southern Ontario Model United Nations Assembly. I, along with P.J. McColl, Ryan Moreira, and David Borsock, have been selected to attend this year's assembly. We will be attending a pretend United Nations assembly, where we will be debating and discussing current international issues with 600 other students. We will be representing the African country of Tunisia. We are all very excited about it because we are the first team in three years from BR to be selected!
BRgurlly05 says: Wow! That's awesome!
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Sure is! Hey, did you hear about the new BR gear that the Student Athletic Association is selling? All items have a snazzy BR logo on them!
BRgurlly05 says: Yeah I did! In fact I just placed my order at the gym office today.
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Oh yeah? I should do that tomorrow. What is available to buy?
BRgurlly05 says: Well you can buy a toque for $15.00, a lanyard for $8.00, a short sleeve t-shirt for $12.00, a long sleeve shirt for $20.00 and comfy sweatpants for $30.00. All taxes included. But be quick because all orders must be submitted by February 25, 2005.
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: Okay great thanks!
BRgurlly05 says: Well anyways I better get going, have a good night!
RoYaL_RePoRtA says: You too, see you tomorrow Katie!

E.C. DRURY HIGH SCHOOL

In light of this year's Grad Polls being filled out by our senior students, this week's article will show the results of our Dateline Drury Poll.

This year's artsy title goes to all the Spartans involved in Drury's theatrical production Angelique. Actors, dancers and artists are giving their all in preparations for their upcoming performance in the Sears Drama Festival. The big performance is on February 25th at Burlington Central High School, so be sure to wish all those creative Spartans good luck!

As for the most athletic Spartans, it looks like the wrestling team takes the cake. The five-time OFSSA champs are revving it up for an extraordinary sixth consecutive title. They are putting in plenty of practice time in preparation for the Golden Horseshoe Athletic Conference title to be held at E.C.D on the 18th of February. Come by the sports building to root on our team!

Student Government stands out as the group with the most school spirit. They are putting in lots of hours planning an awesome Semi Formal dinner for the Spartans. On February 25th, the Grand Chalet in Milton will be teeming with spiffed-up Spartans, dancing and having a great time. Good work Student Government, we're sure this is just the beginning of all the spirited events you have planned for us!

The Spartans most likely to succeed are surely those who will be honoured at our Recognition Celebration. On February 15th at 7 pm, these special students will be commended on their excellent commitment to academics and extra-curriculars at Drury. Keep up the good work Spartans, and good luck in your second semester!

The Senior Reach Team has been voted the team most likely to take over the world. These brainy Spartans had their buzzer fingers ready last Friday when they travelled to Christ the King in Georgetown for their second tournament of the year. These smarty-pants know everything! Results aren't in yet, but we're sure these Spartans made us proud.

The most musical Spartans are obviously the students involved in the music program at Drury. They are hard at work raising money for MusicFest by selling chocolate bars. If you're looking for a tasty treat, hit up the music room to get your snack and help out.

And finally, the group of Spartans named best friends in the Dateline Drury polls was the Dateline Drury team! These close-knit Spartans can be seen skipping hand in hand down the hallways on their way to the library to write their article. Prashant, Katie and Kim are inseparable!

That's all for our Dateline Drury Polls, but watch next week for a new feature, "Where Are They Now?". With this weekly addition to our column, we will be helping to celebrate Drury's upcoming 25th anniversary by briefly interviewing Drury Grads who have gone on to fame and success in the world after they have left Drury. Our first "guest" will be former Drury principal Mr. Moe Pennock. See you then!

MILTON DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL

Welcome back Mustangs! After a nice relaxing break from exams, we hope everyone did well, and achieved their goals. Semester two has only begun but M.D. is on an intense roller coaster, constantly moving and planning different things. This week M.D. has been busy with different events and fundraisers to help around the world.

S.A.A (Student Athletic Association) has been busy planning different events to help recognize our Mustang athletes and keep students active and busy during their lunch.

Beginning this week during period three lunches, S.A.A. is running floor hockey, for all those interested in playing. This is a good way for the students in younger grades to meet the seniors and learn and demonstrate teamwork. Not only that S.A.A. held a pep rally on Thursday, February 10, to recognize our winter sports teams as they enter playoffs. All students were asked to wear either jerseys or school clothing to show school spirit. Good Luck Mustangs!

Last Friday, nobody missed the opportunity to hear M.D.'s own LTD (Life Time Drive) in concert. Tickets were five dollars each, and all proceeds went to aid the Tsunami relief effort. Their show was a success. Way to go LTD show us that Mustang spirit!

This March students and staff are heading down to Grenada to help rebuild and restore homes that were damaged or demolished as a result of Hurricane Ivan. If you would like to make a charitable donation to Project Grenada please contact Geoff Orton at the school (905) 878 2839. Also, a huge thank-you goes out to all of those who have helped out with Project Grenada your efforts are truly appreciated.

On a more academic note students received report cards on Wednesday, February 9. And a good luck goes to all of those students who are preparing and will be writing the math contests this year. Make us proud!

That is another edition of the Mustang Messenger, We hope everyone had a safe and Happy Valentines Day! Keep up the work in your classes semester two has only begun but it will fly by quickly.
