rience with CH and as a councillor.

"Brian is familiar with the workings of all the committees at Conservation Halton," Mr. Krantz said.

Appointees on the board — which includes both councillors and citizen appointees — are selected by their municipal council.

Burlington councillor Carol D'Amelio was also nominated for the position of chair.

Jean Williams, a citizen appointee from Mississauga and former CH chair for four years, chose not to seek re-election, but will continue serving on the board as she's done for 20 years.

"I do not intend to ride off into the sunset, never to be heard from again. I intend to demonstrate that old chairs just keep rocking in another part of the room," Ms Williams said after a presentation outlining CH's achievements last year.

Mr. Penman thanked Ms Williams for her dedication to the board. "She genuinely puts her heart and soul into every moment of this organization."

Ms Williams nominated Burlington citizen appointee John Vice for vice-chair, and he was later acclaimed.

Ms Williams spoke of his recent efforts on the organization's financial review committee, and said although he's been a member of the board for just a year, he's shown true dedication.

"I feel he'd contribute to the skill set of the new chair extremely well," she said.

Mr. Vice said he'd be honoured to serve as vice-chair.

"I pledge to you my hard work and probably a few mistakes," he told the board. "I'll concentrate on the job at hand and (contribute) as sincerely and professionally as I can."

The meeting included a moment of silence in memory of board member Stephen Peebles who passed away earlier this month. Mr. Peebles represented Puslinch.

CH is responsible for flood control, wetland protection, environmental planning and the development of conservation areas for recreation and education. It has about 75 permanent staff members and 300 seasonal employees.

Attempted murder case in court

A Brampton man charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting of a Milton resident will return to Burlington court March 23 to be spoken to.

Basil Martin, 31, appeared at Ontario Court of Justice in Burlington Wednesday when the return date was set.

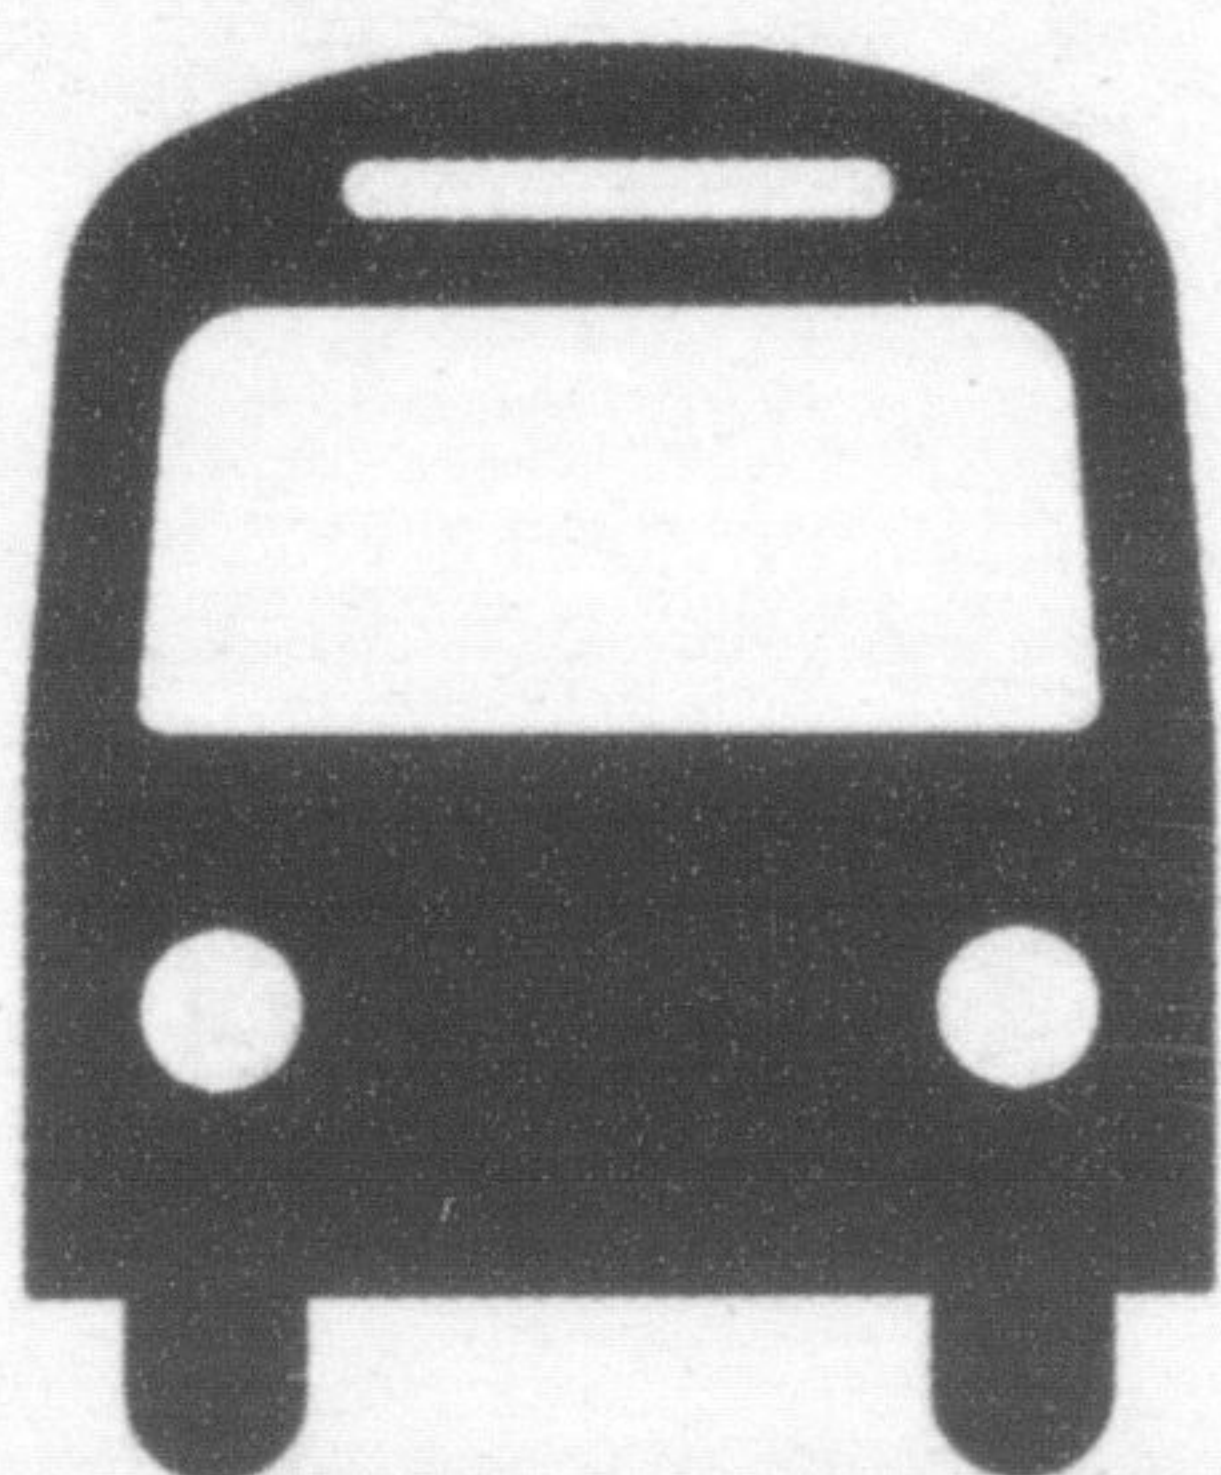

Mr. Martin has also been charged with possession of firearms.

November 11, a Milton man was shot several times in his torso at his Houston Drive home at about 5:30 p.m.

A man turned himself in to police the next day.

Mr. Martin was released on bail into the care of his father and wife in November.
