

Town won't be performing any civil marriages

A last-minute bid by Ward 4 Councillor Wendy Schau to sway council's vote in favour of the Town performing civil marriages proved unsuccessful Monday night.

Last week, the administration and planning committee endorsed staff's recommendation that the Town opt out of offering civil marriage services at this time.

Recent changes to the Marriage Act authorize municipal clerks to offer the non-religious ceremonies to couples, subject to council approval.

Ms Schau said she'd prepared a motion in favour of the Town performing civil marriages, noting that sometimes, people do wish to have a civil ceremony and it's something that's no longer offered by judges or justices of the peace.

"The Town has the opportunity to provide this needed service instead," she said.

But Ms Schau was told in order to bring her motion forward, the original motion would have to lose.

Ward 3 Councillor Cindy Lunau encouraged council to defeat the initial recommendation, adding that not everyone wants a religious ceremony.

"I believe that we have an obligation as a Town," she said.

Ward 2 Councillor Mark Curtis, who's also, a priest, noted he knows someone who makes $1,000 a weekend performing civil marriages.

"Why should we be honing in on someone else's business?" he asked.

Since the original recommendation stating that the Town opt out of civil marriages at this time carried, Ms Schau wasn't able to bring her motion forward.
