CH Foundation board appoints new directors

The Conservation Halton Foundation has announced the appointment of four new members, including one from Milton, to its board of directors.

At Wednesday's annual general meeting, the following became members: Jim Faught, president of Milton's Greenspace Consulting Associates; Dave Beaudoin, president of Newport Leasing and Fairview Chrysler Dodge in Burlington; John Maxwell, proprietor of Allen's; and Jim McCoubrey, former executive vice president and chief operating officer of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The foundation now has 12 members on its board of directors.

"We're nearing our goal of $1.4 million raised for the R. Ross Craig Discovery Centre at Mountsberg and it's very exciting to see the project moving forward," said Brian Hobbs, director of development with the foundation.

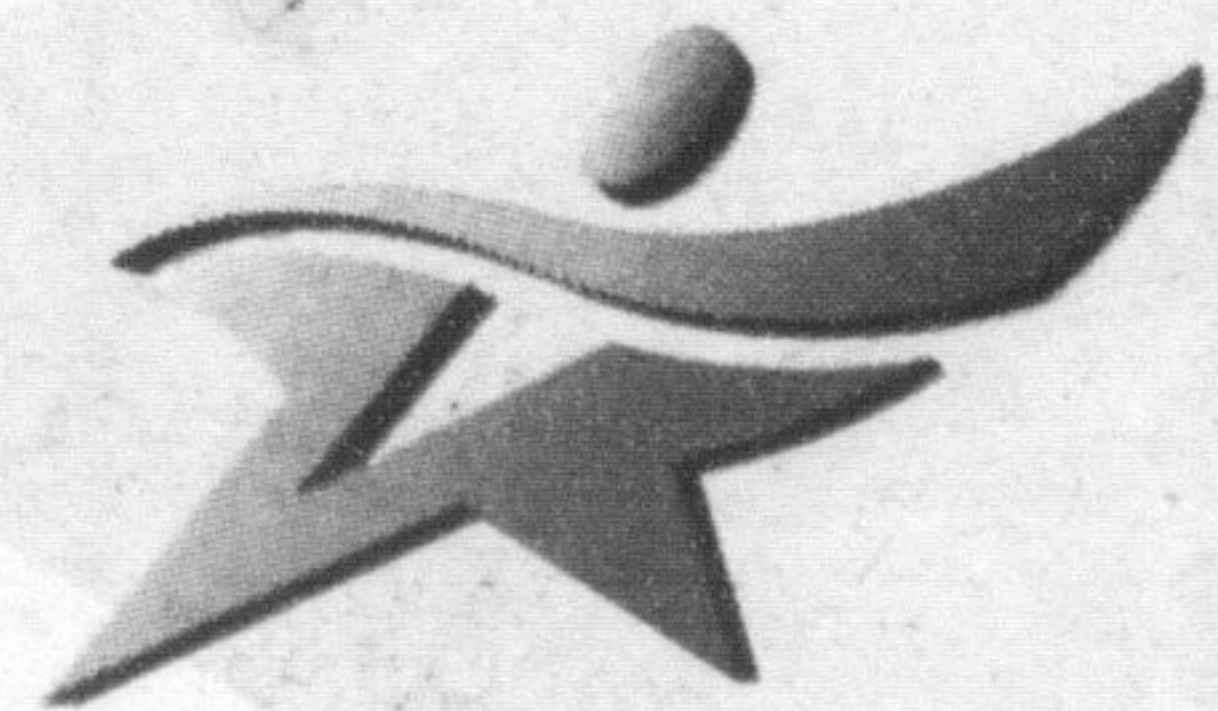

"We're thrilled that these talented and wonderful people are here for the final success of Mountsberg and the exciting projects that lay ahead."

Also at the annual general meeting, Brampton's Don Ford was elected as chair and Oakville's Lisa Penny was elected vice-chair of the foundation.

The Conservation Halton Foundation was formed in 1974 and raises funds to support Conservation Halton in achieving its mission of protecting and enhancing the natural environment from lake to escarpment for present and future generations.
