

Man in coma after crash at Derry and Tremaine

Halton paramedics wheel a driver to an awaiting ambulance as the wreckage of a Ford Probe sits in a field quite a distance away from the intersection of Derry and Tremaine roads where the crash occurred.

An Oakville man remains in a coma after he was involved in a two-car collision Monday afternoon at Derry and Tremaine roads.

As of press time yesterday, 26-year-old Chris Kluczynski was in a coma at Hamilton General Hospital, said Sgt. Trevor Hay of Halton police's Regional Traffic Bureau.

A 42-year-old Campbellville woman — whose name hasn't been released — wasn't injured, he said.

Police, the Milton Fire Department and Halton EMS responded to the scene just before 2:30 p.m.

Police said the investigation revealed a Ford Expedition, travelling eastbound on Derry Road, entered the intersection on a red light.

"It struck the northbound (on Tremaine Road) Ford Probe and caused both vehicles to skid across the road in a northeasterly direction," Sgt. Hay said.

The vehicles came to rest on a grassy area on the north side of Derry Road, and the Oakville man was taken to Milton District Hospital. He was later transferred to Hamilton General Hospital.

The intersection was closed for several hours, and police are continuing to investigate.

"It appears from our information that charges will probably be laid," Sgt. Hay said.
